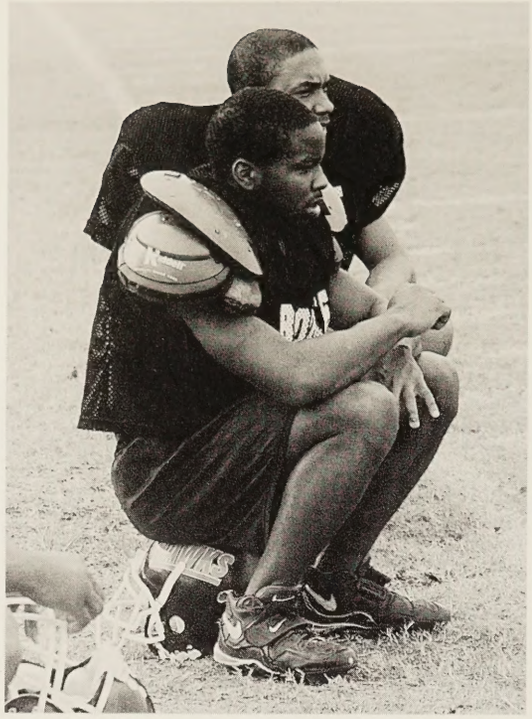
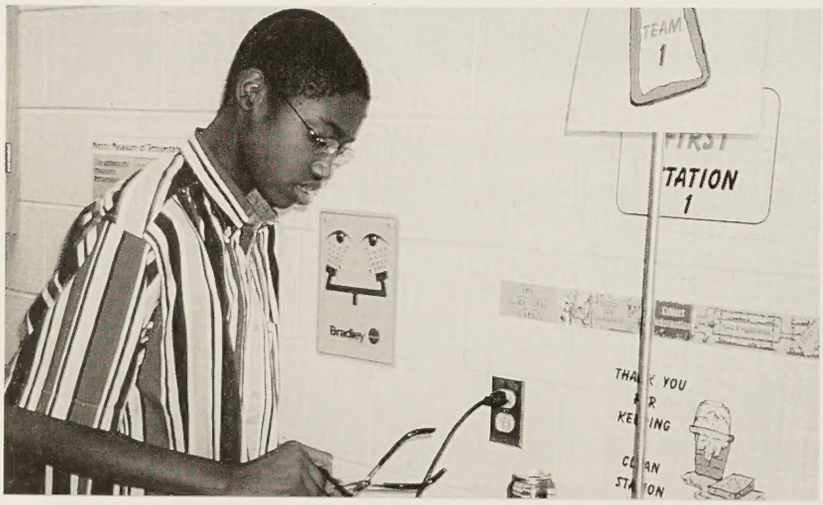
PATIENCE During varsity football practice senior Larry Smith waits for the team to run the plays that he was not in. Waiting could be the worst part because the team ran plays over and over until they got them right for the Friday night games.

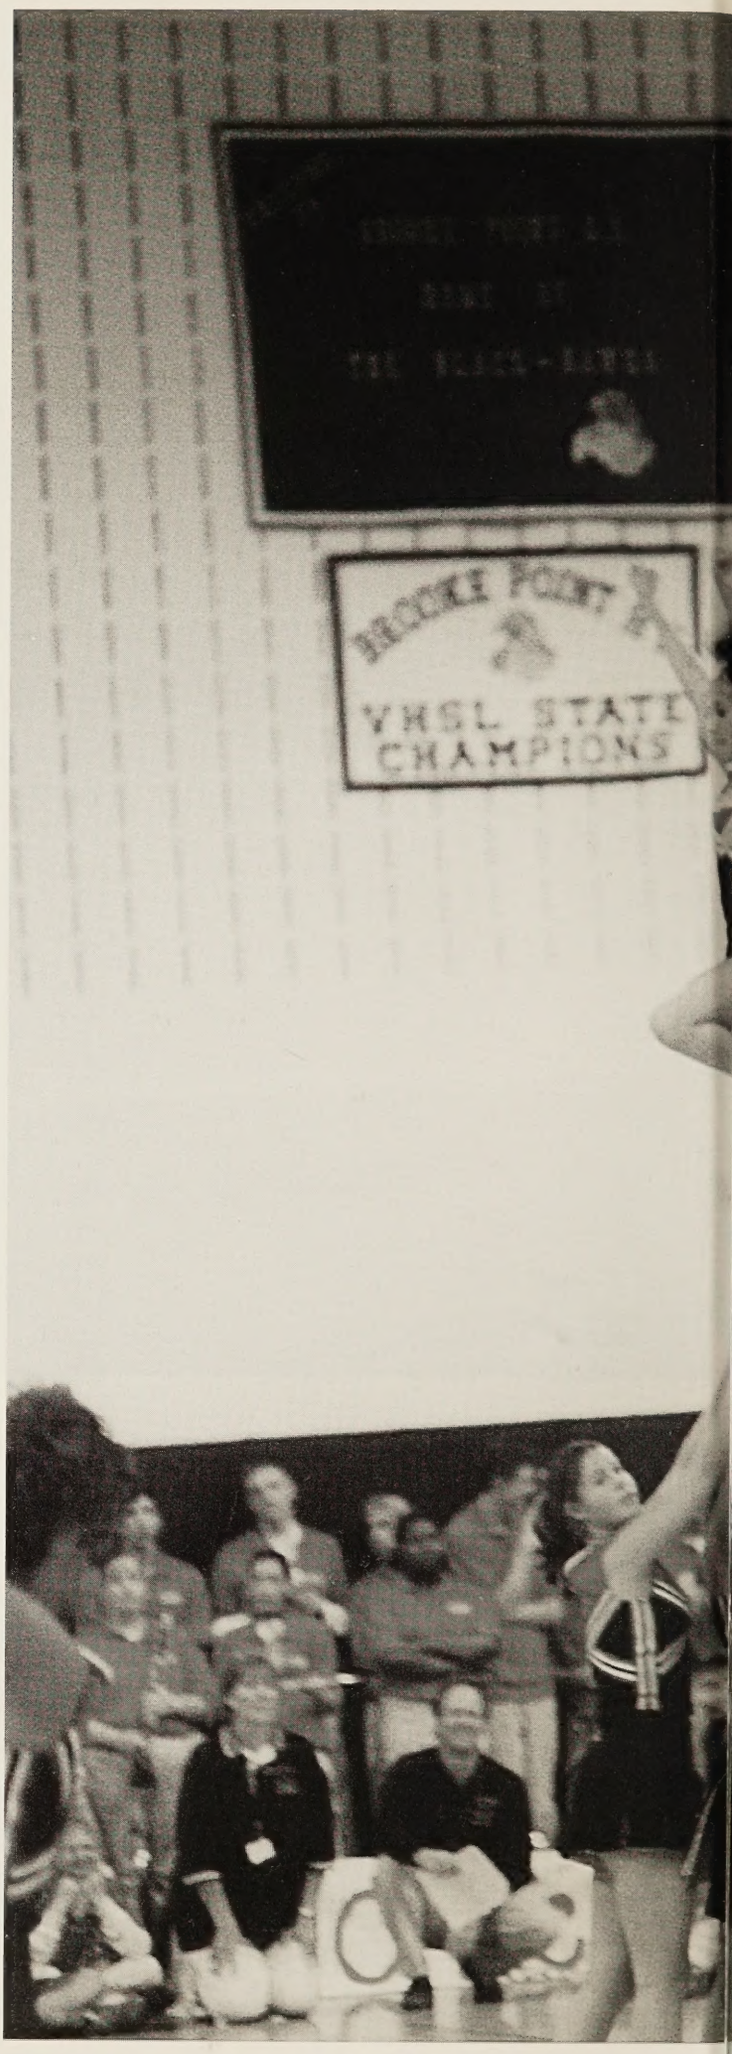


WATCH AND LEARN! Junior Heather Tool watches her teammates practice. "I was watching their technique so that I could learn from them something that I may have been missing," said Heather.



Experiment! Avoiding the hot plate freshman Johnathan Little uses the tongs to pick up a can. The class then put the cans in the water to see what happened.

DO THE TWIST! During a pep-rally, junior Lisa Anderson does a full twist. "The stunt is hard but I worked hard to get it right." Said Lisa.



HERE WE COME

Are you ready for the best school year yet?

Spread by: Tricia Agee

High school has been chaotic, never knowing what will come next. We dealt with the ongoing road construction, weather, and new policies (remember those ID badges). Each day held new challenges, and yet through it all we always came out on top. Some days we didn't know what to expect next (like when Mrs. Holder took over for Mrs. Tillery). BPHS always kept us on our toes. We fought through the crowded hallways, struggling to get to class in five minutes, six times a day with 1750 other people surronding us. We talked, laughed, and cried our way through one of the best school years of our lives, the first year of the new millennium. We overcame the UNPREDICTABLE

LOOK AT ME! Junior Ashly Carr drives home from hanging out with her friends on a Friday night. "It's great driving because I can take myself places." commented Ashly. Many students enjoyed the priviledge of driving and those who didn't got rides from people.

UnUsUal

It'S definatly a strange world out there. People seem to be getting weirder by the moment. Brooke Point has not be left behind in this quest to be different. It is NOT that we, as students, are UNUSUAL, we just seem to find a different way to do things than everyone else. For example, many of us dye our hair TO express our individuality, and unpredictibility. Some of us pierce parts of our bodies. Those who do want to BE different from the rest. That's okay, at least here we can feel free to be different and still be accepted by our friends. TOGETHER we have embraced the weird and have invented the weirder. What is really important is that underneath it all, we will always manage to come together, "AS ONE".

ReWInD THE TIME
Recapping Summer Fun

Spread by: Amee Brothers

Remember the sand in your shoes or the nice cool breeze running through your hair? Rewind the time back to when your biggest goal of the day was to wake up before noon. At least you were wide awake during the summer because of the good amount of sleep you obtained. Your only worry was finding a job to fill the empty days. Rewind the time back to the parties you attended that left impressionable memories upon you. The days you spent vegging on the couch watching old reruns of your favorite television program. Don't forget hanging out on a Friday night at the movies with all your old friends that you haven't seen in awhile. Or maybe at the Sports Garden to play a few games of bowling.

As the summer days begin to get shorter and school hovers just around the corner, many students cram their last bit of fun or finish projects that they have just begun. While you're rewinding the time to your most unforgetable summmer memories, remember that life goes forward, and there will always be next year!

WORKING OVERTIME!
Senior Jonathan Burke puts in eight hours of hard work every day over the summer. He worked with his Dad, at Birck Head Electric, as an assistant. "I was pulling wire for air conditioning units at Godwin Middle School in order for students to have a plesant learning environment," said Jonathan.

skateboarding and was in a coma for seventeen hours. I also worked on and off at the Gauntlet Golf Course." senior Matt Mirabile

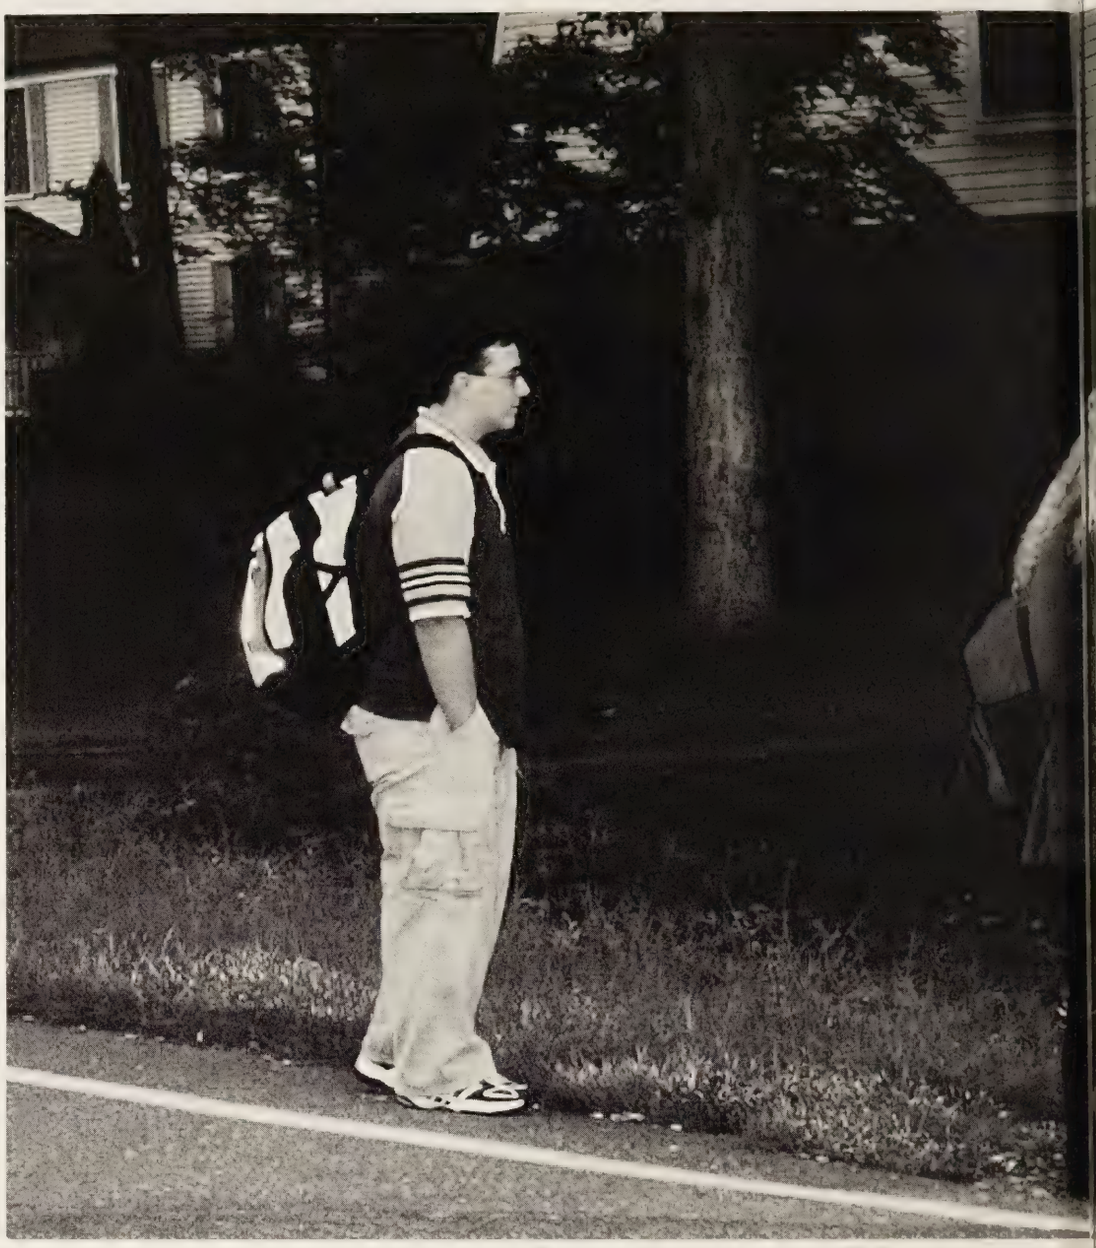
SPLISH, SPLASH! After cross country practice, junior Damian Barnett enjoys hanging out and swimming in the pool. "I knew Jeremy Olmstead was taking pictures of me while I was underwater, but I was a little worried about my hair." When asked about taking swimming lessons Damian replied, "No, but I know the doggy paddle."

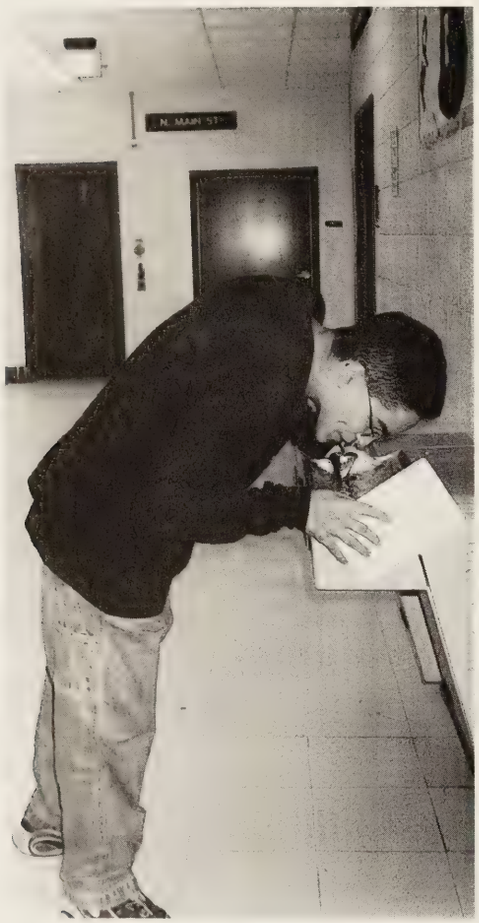
SHE'S SO LUCKY! While on vacation junior Heather Jones, along with family members, got the chance to meet Joshua Jackson. "My family and I were staying in Southport, North Carolina and while we were down there we heard about the taping of Dawson's Creek." When asked about her reactions to him putting his arm around her Heather stated, "I was in total shock. I was warned NEVER to touch them, but on his own will he put his arm around me for the picture. You don't realize it's all going on until afterwards when its too late. It was definately wonderful. For the record Joshua Jackson firmly placed his hand on my bare shoulder."

HAPPY TRAILS During the month of August, juniors Candice Shipp and Kristina Martino take time to enjoy the wonders of nature in Aquia Harbor. "It was a nice cool day and we wanted to go hiking. We hiked for about an hour in search of an abandoned mansion my brother told me about. Needless to say, there was no mansion, so we looked for hiking sticks instead. Candice is a good hiking buddy," stated Kristina.

"Summer needs to be longer." senior Chris Caulfeld "I look forward to having easy classes and getting together with my friends again." junior

ARE YOU READY? Waiting for the bus to arrive on the first day of school sophomore Lee Shumate and freshman Kathleen Gautheir stand on the side of the road. Lee said "There's not very much to say about riding the bus, it's the yellow limousine."





GOT WATER? Needing a break from class junior Sean Duffie uses his agenda for a quick drink of water. In order to get by the administration this year you must carry your agenda book and ID badge with you at all times while in the hallways. Sean says, "I use my agenda mainly as a hall pass not for my homework."

THROUGH THICK AND THIN Seniors Kisha Moore, Jen Pawley, and Connie Askins meet in the commons area before school to talk about the first week of school. So when the topic of friends comes up, senior Jen Pawley said, "They definitely make my life more interesting. Together, friends can make it through so many things, even the first week of school."

Michelle Etienne "I try and think of any other day." sophomore George Bustamante "Doing lots of math homework." freshman Andrew Giffin

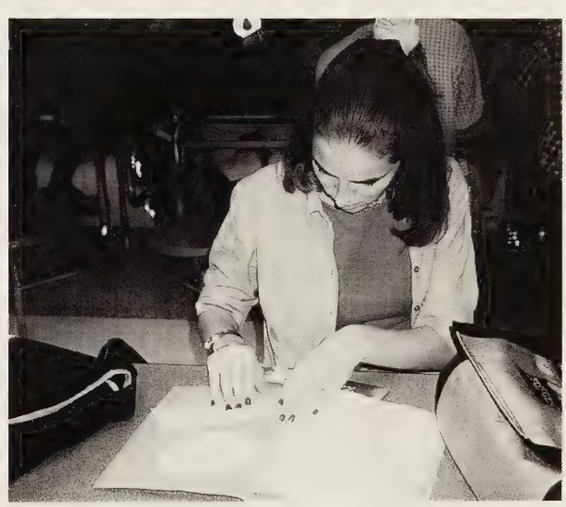
Friends, Fun & School!

Spread by: Danica Horrell and Kristina Laperle

Fall...we all know what that means; back to classes, homework, teachers, and of course, the much loved jam packed hallways. What is it though, that our student body really looks forward to when coming back to school? Freshman Tim Pinney said "...to expand my horizon of knowledge on all planes and levels." Junior Amber Revard replied, "I look forward to seeing who's in my classes, finding out what teachers I have, and seeing all my friends." Students aren't the only people waiting patiently for the beginning of school either; the faculty is excited about seeing new and old faces, as well. Mr. Frantz-Severin said, "I look forward to meeting my new students, especially the freshmen." What more could we expect from the first week of school? Soaring lunch prices, the strictly enforced dress codes, or the inflation of parking pass costs, just about sums up the first week of school.

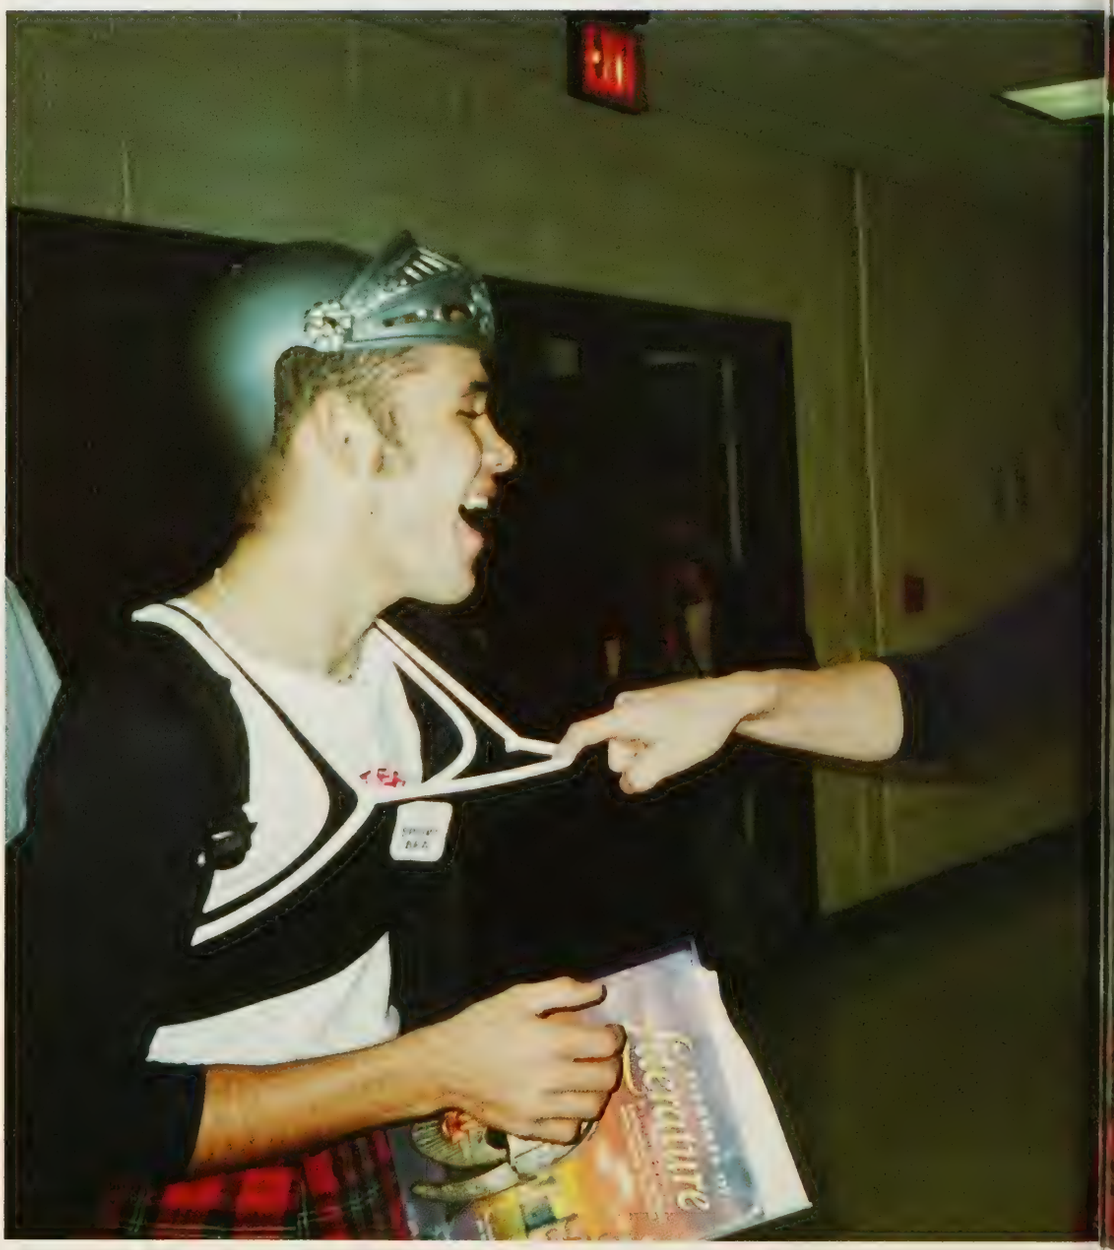


LAST MINUTE RUSH! Perfecting the art of procrastination, junior Melanie Thomas makes good use of lunch on the first day of school. Melanie was rushing to put the finishing touches on her Honors English summer reading assignment before the bell rang. Melanie said, "I should have done this in the summer, but I was too busy having fun."

BATTER UP! For Twin Day during Spirit Week seniors Stephanie Murphy and Joe Wilhelm dressed up as baseball players. Joe commented, "We both liked the way each other looked in our baseball uniforms."

SILENCE IS GOLDEN Due to class rivarly getting out of control, the junior class shows their disappointment by sitting quietly during the Homecoming Pep Rally. During the week, there had been disagreements between the classes for many reasons, causing arguments between friends and classmates.

NICE BRA, MAN "Spirit Week is a lot of fun. it gives us seniors one last chance to be goofy in public," says senior Adam Wimer as senior Geoff Troidl snaps his bra. Most of the students joined in throughout the week to show their school spirit, with everyday being a new competition to see who would win.



"I didn't like the country we had, but other than that Spirit Week was crazy!!" freshman Shane Mainster

G'DAY MATE In preparation for Spirit Week, sophomore Erin Smith and others work after school on the hallway in hopes to capture the title of "Best Hallway." When the hallway was finally done, Erin stated, "Working on the hallway was fun. It was a lot of hard work and took many hours, but it turned out great."

Screaming down the hallways, wild costumes, ridiculous face paint, obnoxious noise makers... who could ask for more? After weeks of preperation and mucho dinero spent, students had a chance to strut their stuff. Instead of worrying about that English report that was due... it was more along the lines of what to wear on the next day. Which class had the most spirit this year? "The sophomores did an excellent job of showing their school spirit!" stated junior Kewi Brown. It seems to be the same routine every year... the freshmen want to participate in Spirit Week, but some are too scared of feeling dumb. The sophomores, having a year of experience from the previous year, join in, no longer afraid of what people will say. And the juniors try their hardest to show their spirit, hoping to beat the senior class. The seniors always seem to outdo the previous seniors. The spirit that classes have just grow year by year. Spirit Week can be one of the best times during the school year because you get to act dumb, wear silly clothes, and act crazy, and nobody is allowed to say anything to you about it. So all of you that were too scared to dress up this year... make sure you do something next year! Remember: The key to Spirit Week is, the crazier you dress, the better you look!

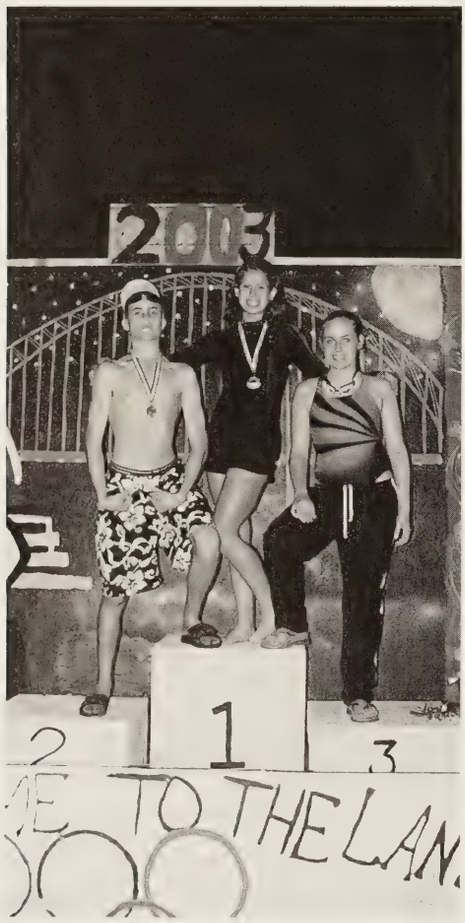
WHO LET THE HAWKS OUT?

"I brought in my body board one day and had to carry it around with me all day!" sophomore Alia Steiner

I COME FROM A LAND DOWN UNDER The sophomore class was proud and really captured the spirit of the year 2000 with their emphasis on the Olympics. A truly gold medal float from a gold medal class.

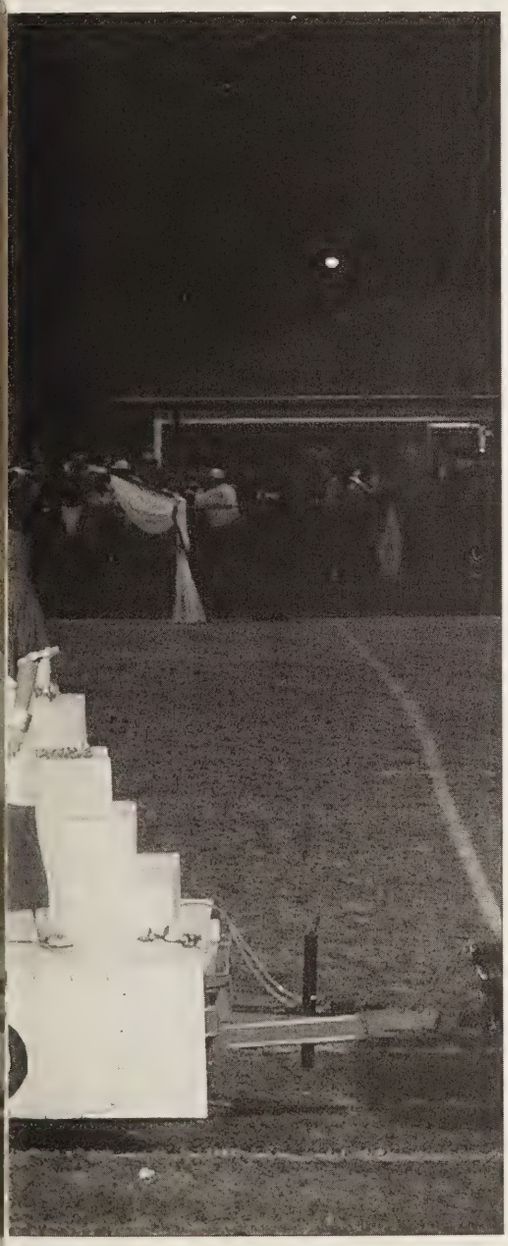


TROPICAL BREEZES, WARM DAYS ON THE BEACHES The junior class wasted their days away in a tropical paradise. The tiki lounge and beach-side scene really fit with the juniors destination of the caribean. Who in the crowd wouldn't appreciate the shark and the hula dancers added for a little extra atmosphere?

ET TU BRUTE? The senior class really stirred things up when they presented their rendition of a Roman float. The pillars, the color, the battling Caesar and senators, who could ask for more creativity. Obviously this was one class that went that extra mile to show their class spirit. We are sure that no one will forget the valiant attempts that Casear made to escape his conquerors only to be cut down. . . several times in one evening.

"I was really impressed with the floats this year. Everyone put in a lot of hard work and effort and it definately shows."

SNOWBUNNIES The freshmen class started their high school career off with enthusiasm. Their destination for "Cruisin' the Globe" was Alaska. In order to demonstrate this theme, their float had mountains and ice fishing. The candy that was passed out, in addition to the float, was enjoyed by the crowd.



This year's homecoming game was a sight to behold. The theme of "Cruisin' the Globe" presented many opportunities for students to be creative and express themselves. Each class was able to put their own unique twist on the theme and produce an outstanding float. Another impressive aspect of the game was the exciting presentation of the homecoming court and the naming of the king and queen. The class of 2004 was represented by Jayson Beck, Erin Supko, Chad Hegna, and Emily Baldo. The sophomores sent Ben Santana, Katie Hargreaves, Kyle Hamm, and Karissa Bingham to the court. Juniors at BPHS elected Thomas Fellers, Tracey Reed, Tom Gibson, and Crystal Calloway, Chad Foreman, and Jessica Della Puca. Finally, the senior class was proud of their representatives: Dennis o'Connor, Tasha Lenar, Michael Carosi, Tahina Lavalliere, Darnell Washington, Jennifer Jenkins, Larry Smith, and Kammie Bingham. When the moment finally arrived, the king and queen turned out to be Michael Carosi and Tahina lLavalliere. It was an exciting evening with a huge turnout to watch the football game. Although the team didn't pick up the victory that they wanted, they still had a positive spirit. John Young said," We gave the game our best shot and we are proud of our effort."

HOMECOMING 2000

Spread by: Laura Anderson and Jen Mulcahy

Everyone who was anyone was at Brooke point High School at 8:00 on October 28th. Okay, so maybe the "cooler" people arrived at a fashionble 9:30, but the point of the matter was that most people attended the homecoming dance. Some of the highlights of the dance included crowning the homecoming king and queen for 2000, dancing to "Bootie Call", and "Cruisin the Globe". This year's king was senior Michael Carosi and the queen was senior Tahina Lavalliere. This was certainly the culmination of a weekend full of fun festivities. What better way to celbebrate the end of an exciting homecoming week than with a dance. Underclassmen and upperclassmen put aside their differences to dance the night away. Junior Amee Brothers said," I spent a lot of time planning for homecoming. I wanted everything to be perfect and it was a wonderful evening." Planning seemed to be the key this year since all homecoming attendees were dressed to impress and looked fabulous. What surprises will next year hold?

A NIGHT TO CUT LOOSE! Junior Nicole Carpenter and junior Barrett Turner took a night away from their studies to relax and enjoy their junior year. Homecoming dance was a fun night for everyone!

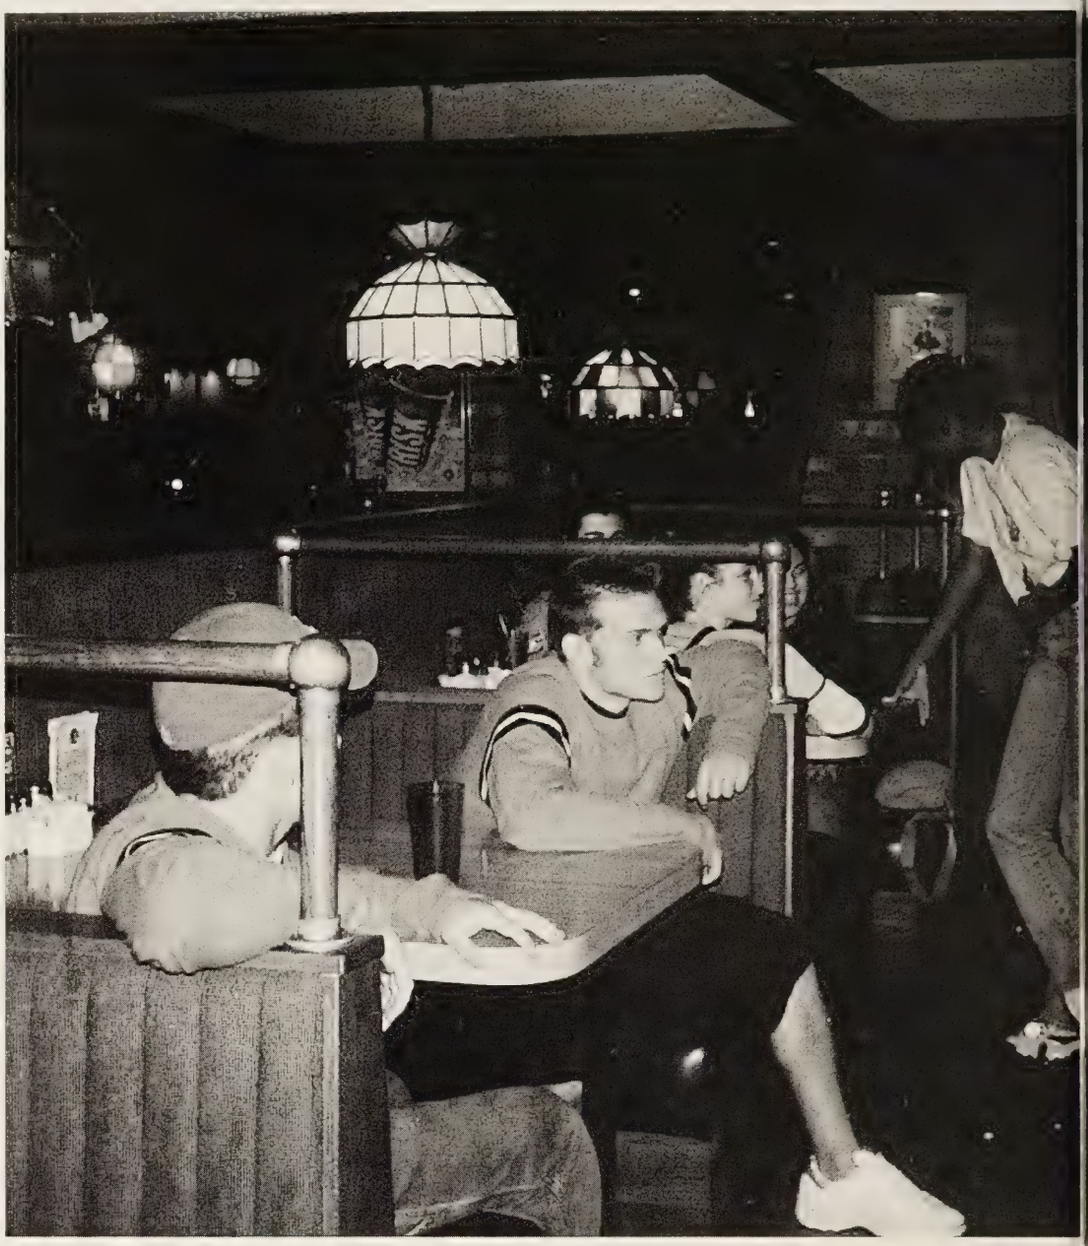
omecoming even though I broke my wrist." freshman Krystal Rose "The ladies were slammin' at Homecoming" Joe Smith

THE PERFECT GENTLEMEN Chivalry is not dead. Being perfect gentlemen, seniors Nitin Patel, Jason Barg, junior Bradon Burton, and senior Brandon Smith took time homecoming weekend to cook dinner for their dates, seniors Roxanne Brenner, Laura Anderson, junior Lisa Anderson, and senior Talia Taylor.

THE ROYALTY ARRIVES At the homecoming dance seniors Mike Carosi and Tahina Lavalliere take time to smile for the camera. Tahina said," I was really surprised to win homecoming queen. It really was a wonderful surprise."

NOT EVERYONE CAN LINE DANCE Senior Jennifer Jenkins, Sophomore Sarah Weeks, junior Amberlynn Sasser, and sophomore Jenifer Shingler break it down to some country line dances. With the detailed instruction of Sarah and Jennifer, the others quickly caught on. The homecoming dance was a great place to see the diversity that makes Brooke Point High School so special. Students danced the night away to an eclectic blend of rock, rap, R&B, alternative, country, and oldies. Jennifer Jenkins said," Country dancing is fun, but dancing to 'The Bootie Call' was truly the highlight of the evening." This was an idea that was echoed by many students. Amberlynn said,"The best part of homecoming was dancing with my terrific boyfriend."

"My favorite place to hang out is by the fridge with my milk and cookies. The cookies and milk will never let you down." junior

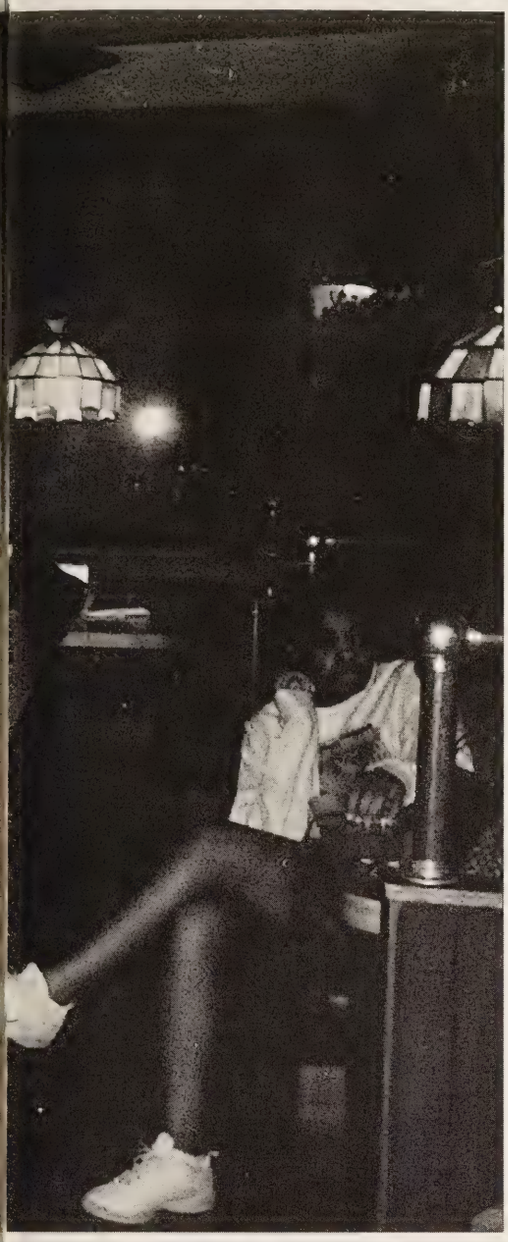


HEADING TO THE HUT Juniors KR MacKenzie, Kenny Nicol, Crystal Calloway and Senior Talia Taylor grab a bite to eat after a game on Friday night. Kenny said " We were at Pizza Hut after beating North Stafford and we were all celebrating."

WOOHOO! Juniors Mila Thomas, Heather Tool, and Daniela Whitfield watch a Varsity football game on a Friday night. Many students attended the games to support their school. "Football games are the best! You have a chance to socialize with your friends while supporting your school," commented Mila.

QUALITY TIME Sitting in her basement, juniors Heather Jones and Joanna Bartz joke around about the summer. That day was the last time the two would see each other for a long time. Joanna was moving to Okinawa, Japan in a few weeks, so they decided to have a get together of Joanna's best friends. Junior Lauren Pickard said, "We would always hang out in Heather's basement. That day was fun, but also sad."

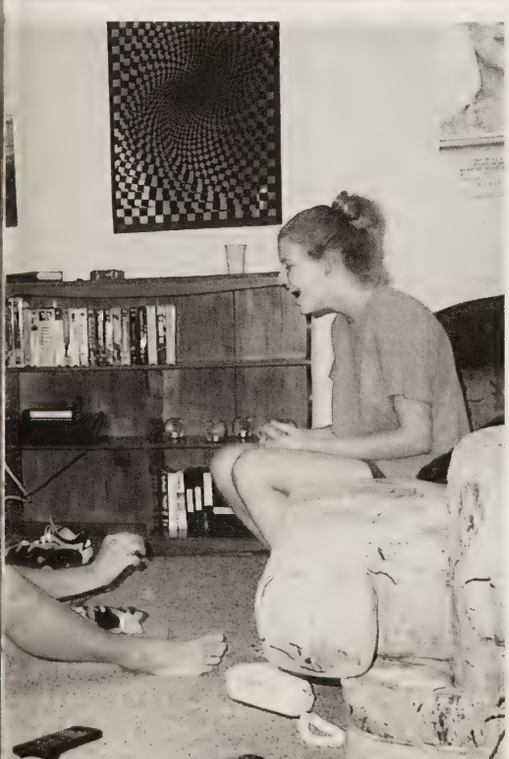
Kristina Martino "Over the weekends I like to go down to Pev's Paintball field and play a few games with the guys!" freshmen Ben Brothers

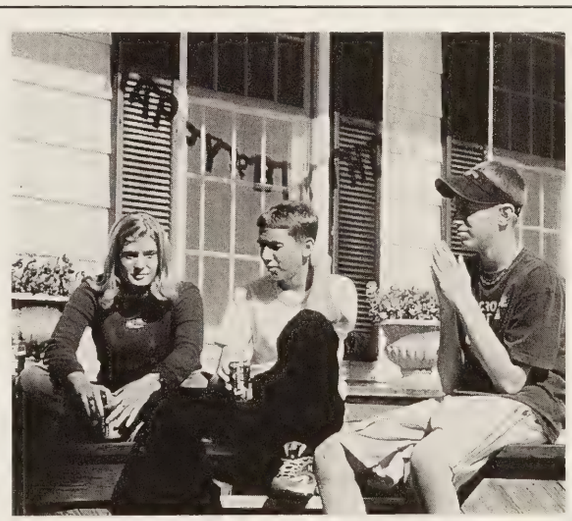


You Can Catch Me At The... HOT SpOt!

Spread by Jeremy Olmstead

...as Foxy Brown would say. Thats where you can find most of the Blackhawks chillin' on a typical Friday or Saturday night. Where are the hots spots in Stafford? Funny as this may sound, there ARE quite a few. A main place you can find several students is at Aquia Towne Center. Many go there to grab a bite to eat at Ruby Tuesdays, Carlos O'Kellys, KFC, etc. Others choose to go catch a qiuck flick at the movies, mellow out at Gargoyles, and compare cars in the "oh so popular" parking lot of Big Lots. If your a stickler for cars, catch car shows every Friday night at Burger King. If all else fails you can always light it up with a game of Cosmic Bowling, or play a mind-boggling game of pool at the Sports Garden. As a last resort you can take a trip up to Central Park to cruise around the mall or play a game of putt-putt. Whatever your preference, there's always excitment just around the corner! So don't fret if you are stuck with nothing to do on the weekend. Hey, if that doesn't work you can always stay home and have a family night with your parents and siblings right?





SURPRISE! Juniors Rachelle Wehrle, Thomas Fellers and North Stafford's Bobby Booth hang out at Chad Forman's sweet 16 surprise party. Rachelle said "Getting Chad out of the van and to the end of the dock to yell surprise, was the best part of the party. We had so much fun that day and I will never forget all the memones we experienced."

SNAKE ANYONE? Sophomore Christopher Quinones holds his boa constrictor, Sammy. The boa enjoys wrapping himself around peoples' arms, and "he also trys to eat our dog," Christopher said.

JUMP! HOW HIGH? "He stands up for raisins," says Junior Arielle Molino of her rabbit, Peanut. She said that he doesn't really know any other tricks, "but he's a good cuddler."

WHAT ARE YOU LOOKING AT? Teddy, his "little, white cottonball," stares into Junior Joshua Mahoney's eyes. At home there is plenty of time to run around, play, or just sit and relax. In this little counseling session, Joshua says, "My dog has a problem with running into trees." Although this might leave Teddy a little dazed, he seems to be fine as he continues to race in circles through the house. "He's my little Teddy Bear," Joshua adds.

"We have this bush in our front yard, and when we come home our cat, Frisky, runs around the yard then runs through the bush." senior

SHOW ME THE LOVE! While sitting at home, with her ferrets, Nookie and Smokie, Senior Jennifer Crossley takes time out to cuddle with her favorite pets. "Smokie likes to run himself into mirrors," she says laughing, while the two continue to lick her face.

Pets: are they man's best friend or archenemy? Have your pets been acting strange lately? have you ignored fussy eating as merely a stomach disorder? Perhaps these animals have something on their mind. Freshman Katharyn Barth said, "My dog chews the hair off tennis balls." This type of behavior could be easily mistaken as domestication, but they are most likely involved in more important things, like world domination!

Human society has not determined the intelligence of its domestic pets. We think they have it easy, lying around the house, day in and day out, but, it's when you're not looking that they really come alive. Every moment you're gone or every time you turn your head, they're there, plotting, pondering. Freshman Megan McElfresh said, "my three dogs chase their tails then run into the walls." The pets of the world are stressed. Obviously, they are readey to get rid of us.

Recently, pet behavior has gone to the extreme and become very abnormal. "She thinks she's a dog," said senior Jarrod Taylor about his cat.

Something must be done now! The question of human existence is at stake! We don't want to be condemned by a bunch of loud, mangy, dirty, animals, do we? I don't think so. You know the saying, "every dog has its day?" Well its about time we changed that.

It also teaches me certain qualities and aspects of life that relate to teamwork and cooperation," Brandon said. Brandon plays for Stafford United and has been playing for a few years.

Being a youth in today's society one would normally associate sports with school. However, that is not always how it goes. Many students participate in different out of school sports. Some students participate out of school because Brooke Point doesn't offer their sport or simply because they enjoy it more. Freshmen Erin Supko said "I dance because it's the way I express myself and show how I'm feeling without words." Dance, baseball, and soccer are all sports included at BPHS. However, sports like karate, hockey, and horse back riding leave students with no other choice but to do their sport elsewhere. Sophomore Jessica Gallliani has been doing karate for four years and says "I do karate because it gives me more self confidence to know I can kick anyone's butt." Even though students particpate out of school the end result is still the same: students coming together "as one" to be the best

Changing Colors of the Season

Spread by: Sarah Athing

Going back to school, football games, wearing jackets, and raking leaves...does this sound familiar to you? It's that time of year again, time to get back in the jist of things. There's things changing all around us, whether it's the color of the leaves, the changing of the road, or the new faces that we see. Pretty soon the season will be changing, but before you break out the snowboots and gloves, make sure you've had some fun carving pumpkins and trick-or-treating. But what about raking leaves and all the work that comes along with this season. Speaking of the weather, Senior Sarah Berube said, "I like fall because of how it's warm during the day and cold at night so I can snuggle." It's also great weather to go camping in the woods while it's nice and cool outside. "You can have bonfires and roast marshmellows with friends," said senior Lindy Ruh. Whether you're sleeping in a tent or snuggeling in your bed, you're getting an extra hour of sleep. "I look forward to this season because when it comes, I get to sleep in an extra hour," commented Senior Jason Ellis. There are some good things that come along with this season, after all, you are back in school!

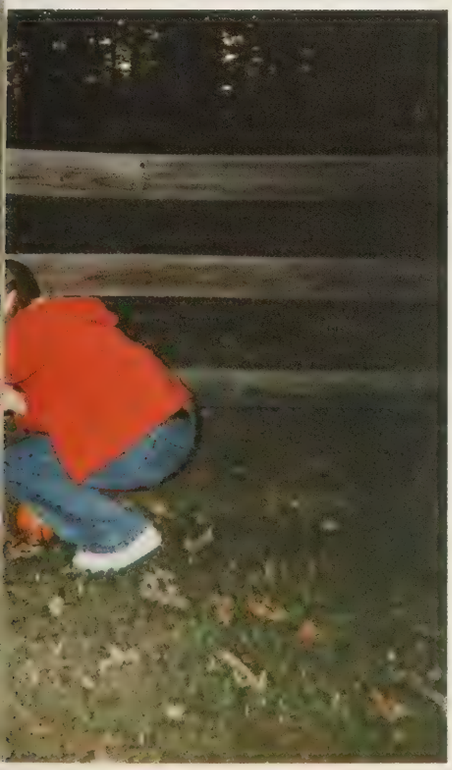
QUALITY TIME TOGETHER
Freshman Kevin Athing explains to his little sister the details on carving her pumpkin. "I have to help my sister carve her pumpkin so it turns out atleast halfway decent."



REMEMBER, LIFT WITH YOUR LEGS
Senior Brittany Williams and junior Amber Revard spend a Sunday afternoon picking out the perfect pumkin, or maybe we should say picking up the perfect pumpkin. Which pumpkin to choose and create a yearly masterpiece from is a hard decision for people of all ages, but Amber said that she had a hard time this year. "I knew this was the right pumpkin," said Amber, "when I could barely get if off the ground." Choices were scarce this year because of a poor pumpkin yield from farmers. Pumpkins were more expensive and harder to find than ever before. It was lucky for these two girls that they were able to find this perfection.

LAUGHTER IS THE BEST STYLE Senior Lia Carvallo spends her school day laughing and smiling down the halls. She is wearing the modern version of the 1960's sweater set. Trends that many thought had gracefully faded away were resurected and given new life. Groups of friends were often instrumental in rejuvenating these more traditional styles. Bell bottoms continued to be a hot renamed as "boot cut jeans" or "flares", the 80's multi-bracleted arms and feathered hair returned (thanks to a remake of "Charlie's Angels", and students continued wearing brands such as Tommy and Gap.

Just a Little Different

Spread by: Sarah Beuchart

At one point in history it was not okay to be different. People were persecuted for not fitting "the norm". Today, the more you can stand out the better. Students create a variety of styles in many different ways. This year saw a continuance of piercings. Still popular were tongue rings, eyebrow and cartiledge piercings, and lip rings were still appearing. As for hair, styles changed as frequently as the colors. A quick scan of the halls showed short spiked hair on the some males, while other guys sported a longer look. Girls covered all ranges of the length spectrum from short shags to long curls. Blue, green, white, pink, yellow, you name it, we saw it in the hair color department. Andy Frank said," I do it to stand out. If you look like everyone else you won't get noticed." This is the sentiment echoed by many students. What a great way to live with others - accepting!

No one ever has a perfect day. Sometimes your bus is late or your car won't start. Maybe something has gone wrong with your printer and you can't get your research paper to print. Whatever the problem is, you need someone that you can depend on. In times like this who do you turn to? Probably your best friend. Friends make life bearable and Brooke Point has more than its fair share of friends.

Whenever you wander the halls, whether it's between before school, or after school, friends are evident everywhere. You see groups of people hanging out at their lockers or walking down the hall discussing problems. If you listen carefully, usually you can come up with the latest gossip and current events. Several students indicated that the halls are a great place to catch up on the latest problems of their friends. With the shortage of time during lunch and the mounds of homework that monopolize the normal student's time, it is hard to find that one moment when you can purge all of your problems to a sympathetic ear. Sophomore Lindsey Dunn said," I enjoy the times that I spend with my friends. They are always there for me in the good and bad times." Clearly friends are important and everyone should take the time recognize their friends and tell them thanks for everything that they have done.

Are you sick of putting up with your siblings at home? Just imagine having to put up with them everyday at school too. Senior Sarah Athing said, "My brother Kevin and I don't get along very well in school because we see enough of each other at home." That seems to be the feelings of most of our blackhawks that have siblings in school. There are the select few though, that actually enjoy the idea of seeing their brother or sister in school. Freshman Chris Jones says, "I love to see my sister Ashley at school because when I have a rough day, I know I can count on her to cheer me up." The bonds some have with their siblings are strong. It's always nice to know that if you want an honest opinion, you always have someone to turn to. There always will be the times that you may bicker and fight, but you can to get over it. So much can be learned from your sibling. You get a whole new look on life from someone elses point of view. Going to school with your sibling could even give you a chance to watch over them. As junior Jessica Della Puca says, "It gives me the chance to look after my younger brother Kevin." In the end, it looks like we all do get along.

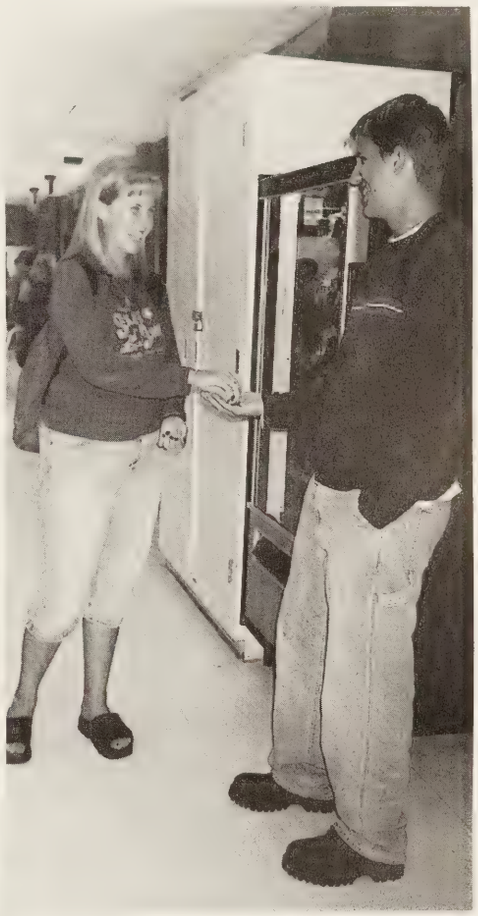
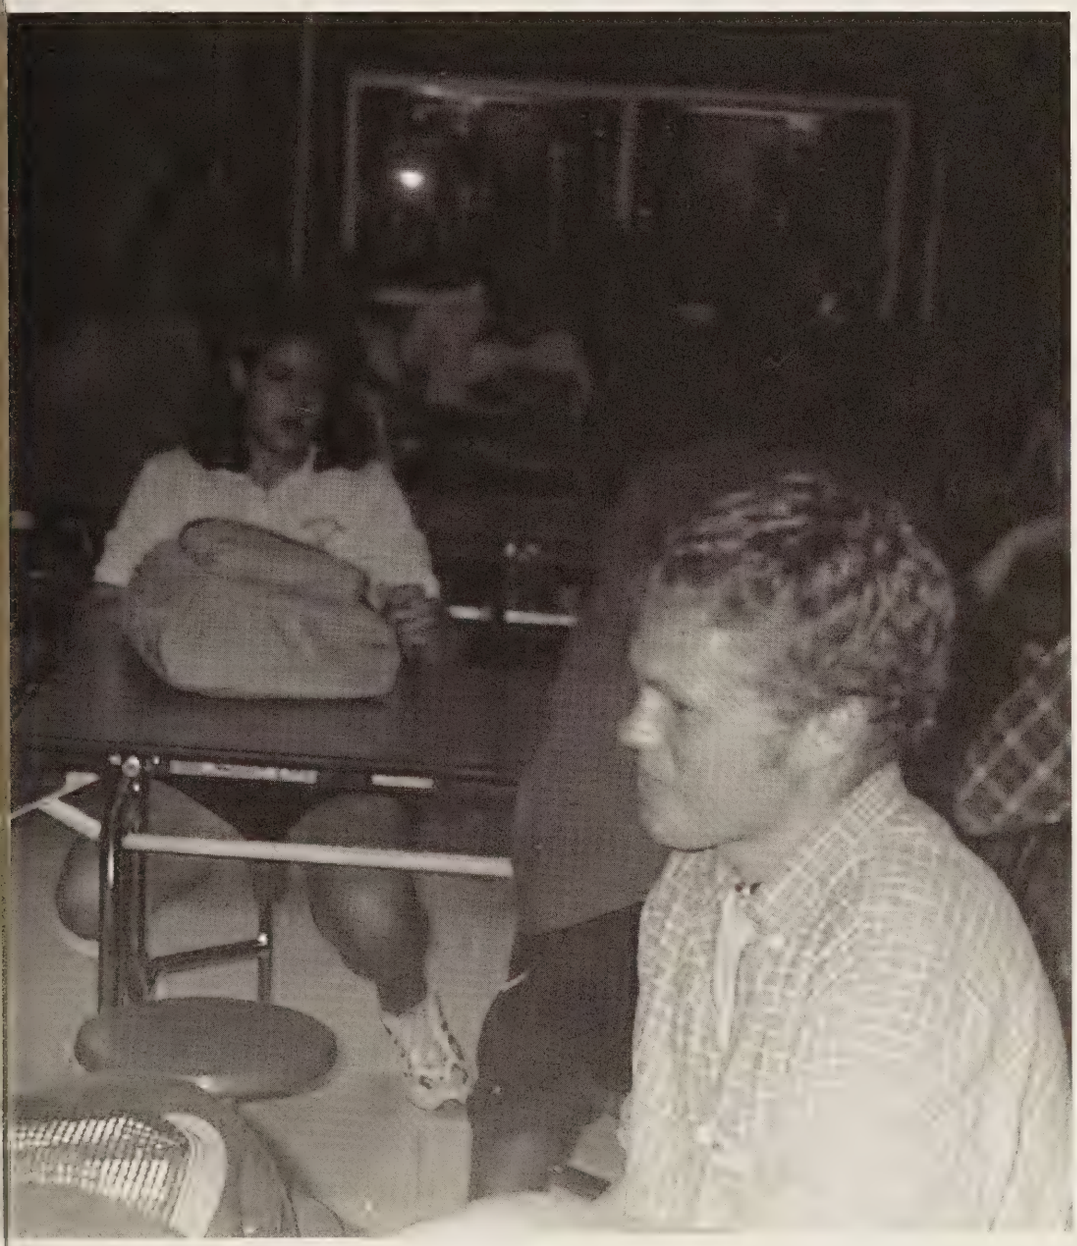
LET'S GET READY TO RUMBLE! Junior Chad Foreman puts his stepbrother, freshman Justin Fellers, in a friendly headlock to demonstrate his strength. Rough housing among siblings is not unheard of at Brooke Point. When asked how he felt about going to school with his little brother, Chad commented, "Since I barely see him, it's not much different from home. Although, he is a lot cooler in school because he doesn't nag me as much."

GIMME ALL YOUR MONEY
"Since Kelly and I have gone to school together for a while, she no longer puts up a fight when I make her give me money," commented senior Rick Slater as his sister, junior Kelly Slater gives him her money.





TEMPORARY TRUCE Here's a rare sight, senior James Hardgrave actually talking to his younger brother Eric. When cornered about this lunch encounter James said, "Me and my 'big' bro going to the same school isn't too bad, I guess. It's not good having a younger brother three times the size of me, 'cause now I'm the one getting picked on."

THE ONLY WAY IS ONE!

Seniors Take Over

Spread by: Lisa Webb

After three long, dragging, monotonous years, finally the fourth and final year arrives. It went out with a BANG! Some of the favorite parts of being a senior are senior pictures, Senior Skip Day, getting out of class early for lunch, and sitting in the senior court. We can't forget beach week, but the most precious part is GRADUATION!

This was the year that we were finally the leaders of our school. This was the last year to be together as a class and we often took time to reminisce about the good times and bad times.

We were a step closer to the "real world:" college applications, essays, deadlines, and semester exams. These filled all of our time. Gone were the days of kicking back and relaxing with no worries, present are the times when there was always work to do.

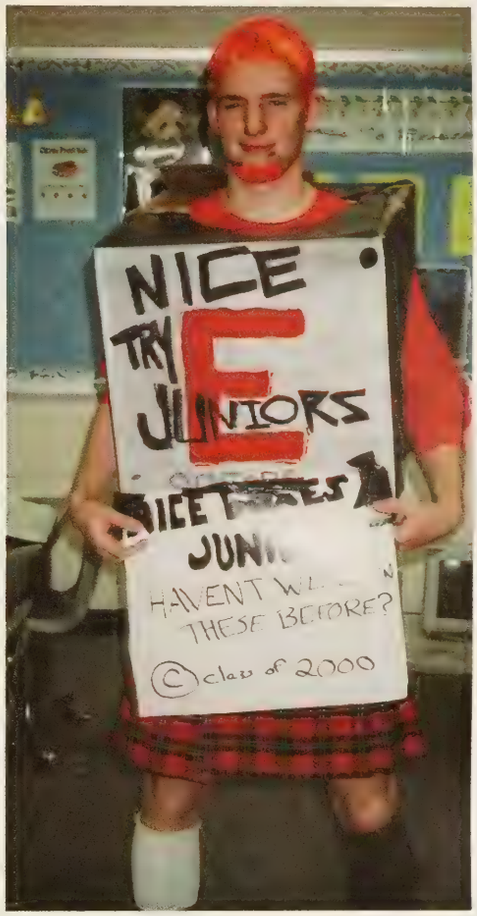
However, there was more than work and stress; there was fun. We are the oldest in the school, and the seniors proved that their spirit was in full force. Their presence was known; it was evident in their float and hallway victories, their entuhsiam and support at the pep-rallies. The class of 2001 was extraordinary.

SHARK BITTIN' While on a Marine Science field trip seniors Jason Barg, Katie Campbell, and Laura Anderson pose through the sharks mouth. "The field trip was really fun especially spending it with my best friends Jason and Katie." Laura said.

QUICK FIX On Friday at Spirit Week seniors Talia Taylor and Martha Mathis get all spirited by writting '01 on their cheeks. "We all wanted to show class spirit so we decided to paint our faces." Talia said.

"I liked getting out of class two minutes early for lunch and beating all the underclassman to the lunch line." Adam Wimer

BOW DOWN! Seniors Josh Hall, Joe Whelhelm, and Stephanie Murphy show off their school spirit in support of the senior class. Usually, it's the senior class that tends to have the most spirit because they don't care what the underclassmen think.



NICE TRY! Senior Andrew Shirk sports a junior spirit box as a copyright of last year's class. In order to complete these outfits the seniors "acquired" boxes from the junior class.

Leaving OUR MARK

UnForgetable

Being an individual in the new millenium is not an easy thing. YOU are faced with new challenges every day. Each week new and innovative people ARE brought to the halls of Brooke Point. We are lucky to have a wide range of diversity to broaden our minds and open our perceptions of those around us. In an age filled with conflict we have created a harmony within our halls and we have bonded together to peacefully resolve our problmes. TRULY we are a special group that can put aside differences and work together "as one", and we have succeded in being individuals. We are really an UNFORGETABLE group of people.

Vogue-Strike a Pose Move your head a little to the left. Now drop your chin. Okay pull your shoulders around towards me. Smile! Hey seniors does that sound familiar? Twist your body into the most uncomfortable poisition but look natural. One thing that seniors look forward to is getting their senior pictures taken. "I thought the pictures were a lot of fun. I got mine taken twice. The first time they only spent ten minutes with me. The second time was more fun because they spent an hour just with me," commented senior Dennis O'Connor.

Bow Down! Seniors yell at the underclassmen to respect their authority. Although they do have some advantages, seniors don't have any "real power." They do, however, have privledges that underclassmen don't. Seniors start the day by parking in the senior lot closer to the front door. They get to leave two minutes early so they can get their lunch before all the other students. They never have to worry about finding a table at lunch because most of the time they take an underclassmen's table. As their last year at Brooke Point High School, seniors really do RULE THE SCHOOL!

Friday=Freedom Finally, it's Friday night, and the weekend is right around the corner. No school, no homework, no waking up before 7...sounds nice doesn't it? If you're one of those people who enjoys watching Saturday morning cartoons, you're a weekend person. Whether it's Saturday or Sunday, people are hanging out all over. Senior Kim Pearson meets up at Gargoyles to talk to former BP student Sean Batien and another friend Josh. "I like meeting people here because everyone knows where it is, and we can all leave there together," said Kim. Other students have been spotted nearby at the movies and McDonald's. But whether you're out living up the party life, or sleeping in we are all thinking the same thing.. thank goodness it's the weekend.

Is it Road Construction or Nerve Destruction? Road construction has been in the making sice 1994 when Brooke Point first opened. It finally broke ground five years later in September of 1999 to start the belated process of construction for our new and improved roadway, so we can be rollin' our way to school. This construction was expected to end this November.

Beep Beep Beep! As you press the snooze on your alarm clock AGAIN, you come to the harsh reality that it is Monday morning. It is the start of a new day, and the beginning of a long week filled with chores, homework, and practices! The fun you had on the weekend is long gone and only a distant memory. For many students the first choice would be to come to school late. But as luck has it you are on your second tardy and you have that math test first period that you didn't study for. So do you skip the math test and study for it or settle for the five-day suspension? Don't forget the people who begged you for a ride last week. No need to fret, Friday's only four days away.

Late Again? Senior Brad Dabney looks down and watches the time fly by, as he thinks of things to tell his parents as to why he was delayed in returning home. "I don't like curfews," Brad said. "Curfews have no point. My favorite excuse [for being late] is I had to give someone a ride home." When asked when their curfews were, students gave answers ranging from the strict 10:00 to the "whenever I feel like coming home." Since the county of Stafford does not have a set curfew for teens, Brad and the rest of us are at the mercy of our parents.

After spending four long years at Brooke Point it was hard for us to say good-bye. We excelled in our athletics and surpassed standards. All the sleepovers, all the games, dances and lunches; all the things that we will always remember. We have spent three years waiting for this moment. And now looking back we realize how fast it really went by. We became best friends and or worst enemies, but that doesn't make our good-byes any easier. We look forward to college, jobs, our future, and we want to grow up and have family. However we still have a small sense of frea of stepping into the "real world." As we walk through the hallways to say our final good-byes to favorite teachers and best we realize this will be the last time we are all together. Some of our friends will go away to college and we will loose touch, but they will always be unforgetable.

MAKIN' WAVES On October 21 during a junior class float meeting juniors Amee Brothers, Heather Irvine, Amanda Guckian, Heather Tool, and Heather Jones make waves. The girls gathered at junior Amanda Guckian's house to get the float finished before the upcoming homecoming game. The junior class destination for homecoming 2000 was the Caribbean. "Working on the float took long hours and was really hard, but in the end all our hard work paid off. Our float was really good. I thought we should have won first place!" said Heather Irvine. The juniors float came in second place in the competition.

VROOM VROOM: Dual exhaust, twin turbo, chrome rims. Don't you wish you had all this on your car? Everytime you turn your head it seems like someone is adding something to their car. It is definitely a competition with many students to see who has the best car, fastest car, or loudest car. Everyone has a different opinion. "It is fun to bang out all the cars that think they are fast, especially red Civics that like to quit when they are about to lose!" stated senior Tyler Robertson. Competition for having the best car is obviouly a trend at BP that won't be changing anytime.

Lockdown also consists of senior Bruce Baisch, junior Wes Grant, and sophomore Matt Hughes. In January the boys recorded a demo at Wally Cleaver's Studio in Fredericksburg. It took six days to complete. Junior Tim Pryor said,"The studio was definately a new and interesting experience for us (LockDown) that a lot of musicians our age don't get the opportunity to go through." The band Released their demo on February 10th, 2001 and plan on recording their first LP sometime in June. Junior Wes Grant stated,"Our music has become more of a business than just a fun activity. We (LockDown) have to look at it that way because there is too much time and money invested in our music."

WHATS THAT? Field trips means funtimes, no schoolwork, and getting to learn hands-on. On October 10th BPHS and CFHS Marine Science students had to be at the school at 5:30 am and ride the bus for three hours. Every student bundled up in jackets and in blankets on this cold October morning. The first stop was the VA Beach Marine Science Museum, where they got to look at different sea creatures. After about two hours, students were then taken to the dock to board a boat. When the boat set sail students began working on sampling water, testing salinity, and catching fish. Overall, the students learned several new things and now have the opportunity to watch their species grow and develop.

STRANDED! Do you have a friend who never stops talking? You know the ones that go on and on forever about anything and everything? The truth of the matter is that she has been my best friend for seven years and I would never intentionally do anything to be mean to her!" Mila explained. GOOD DAY MATE! During the Homecoming game, we saw and appreciated all the floats. What was seen was nothing compared to all the time and effort the sophomores put into their float. Meetings held both at school and at Emilie Ferran's house were necessary to get all of the work completed. Sophomore class president Celest LeRoux commented, "Everyone toiled and slaved over our 8x18 piece of Australia. We had a lot of people working on it this year so it looked good."

"SLOW DOWN!" "Hit the brakes!" "Don't follow so closely!" Do any of these phrases sound familiar? They do to many 10th graders. As part of the 10th grade physical education curriculum, everyone is required to take Driver's Ed for nine weeks. After completing driver's ed, students sign up for a week long course called behind the wheel. In behind the wheel, the new driver learns techniques with an instructior and practices driving basics, which are not always easy! "It is hard for me to stay within the speed limit, because it is so slow," complains Matt Beeman. One word to describe new drivers' skills, unpredictable!

SUMMER FUN! During the summer of 2000, some BP students spent their time working, vacationing, watching TV, while others spent their hot summer days at camps. Learning new skills, meeting new people, and learning how to perfect something they enjoy. Whether they attended soccer, field hockey, yearbook, cheerleading, or football camps, students brought home with them not only more knowlegde and skill but memories and friendships that last a lifetime. "Cheerleading camp was a lot of hard work but also a lot of fun! It brought us together as a team!" said sophomore Sarah Weeks.

CHANGE OF COMMAND! In her office, our new principal, Mrs. Cindy Holder, sits at her desk, and shuffles paperwork. Mrs. Holder returning to Brooke Point was only one of the many changes that students have had to over come this year. Other changes that we encountered were ID badges, the senior court yard wall, Mr.Stemple leaving us to go to North Stafford, and stricter rules when it comes to tardiness. "I worked very hard to return to BP and it has been worth it! We have grea t students and a great faculty," said Mrs. Holder. With all the current changes, Mrs. Holder did her best of keeping everyone together "AS ONE!"

Concerts that were big hits this year were: *Nsync, Dixie Chicks, Creed, Up in Smoke, HFS, Tim McGraw and Faith Hill. Every student had a favorite concert, and thought their group was the best!

GLOOMY DAY AT BP! Seniors Adam Wimer and Geoff Troidel have to sit at the "Dead Table" at lunch. Blackout Day, an event sponsored by SADD is a very important day, with a very important messege. Members of SADD elect "reapers." These "reapers" must wear all black. Throughout the day these repers go around to different class rooms to "kill" students. The students assigned dead, then also in all black, must carry a black balloon, and wear a sign that says, "I was killed by a drunk driver!" They are not allowed to speak to other students throughout the day. This is a very depressing day at BPHS that really makes teachers and students think twice about decisions and consequences.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT! Imagine that you're just standing around, waiting for marching band practice to start, when all of a sudden a truck comes rolling straight towards you! Freshmen Robert Sisk, Ted Kiessling, Genny Myer, and Alison Brann stood in amazment as they looked at the truck that mysteriously rolled onto the stairs outside of the school. Before the truck crashed Robert jumped inside to pull up the emergency brake. Ted tried using his super human powers to grab the back of the truck and hold it. Despite all attempts, the truck did not come to a stop until crashing into the stairs. Apparently interesting things do happen at school.

freshmen Robert Sisk "The truck was possessed, possessed I tell you!" freshmen Ainsley Klaiser

"LOOK IT'S SNOWING!" You could hear students voices echoing the halls on Friday January 5th. Light flurries were in the forecast, but it was hard for students to pay attention when is started snowing heavily during first period. Rumors of early dissmissal because of dangerous roads were discussed all day. Till finally, 6th period it was announced that school would be let out at 1:15. While waiting for "traffic" to clear up in the senior parking lot seniors Aubry Hummr Rick Slater play baseball with snowballs and a shovel. "The road swere really bad! It was funny watching the underclassman try to get up the hill coming out of their parking lot!" commented Rick.

LENDING A HELPING HAND

"It makes me feel complete, and it makes me feel as though I've given back to the community." senior Jason Barg "Volunteering

GIVING BACK There are many calsses and clubs in our school that help volunteer in the community. Interact, FBLA, and National Honor Society are just a few. The main class known for their hard work and dedication with voluntering is Learn and Serve. Each student must complete 75 hours during the year of both in school and out of school hours. With a new teacher this year, Mrs. Martha Carter, it took both her and her students a while to get used to it all. "It has been a learning experience teaching this class," commented Mrs. Carter. Many of the students walk away feeling better about themselves.

VANITY First you need to get the license. Then comes the new car. Finally, the vanity plates appear on your car. Junior Kyle Farley has taken care of all three of those. Skism, which started out as a band Kyle was in, is now his nickname in his new band, Lockdown. Students had many reasons for getting their personalized plates. Junior Juan Parker, whose plate says, AGILE2, got it with the car. "My dad put it on there, and I do not know what it means," commented Juan. Senior Bill Rivers, PNT17247, said he got his as an "inside joke." Whatever the reason, license plates have truley become a way for students to express themselves.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO ME! Presents, balloons, cake, and the rights that come with them. In high school every birthday is an important one. Most freshmen turn 15 and finally get the feel of the open road, with mommy and daddy nagging you from the passenger side. Sophomores finally ditch their parents. Juniors, at the age 17 can buy tickets to rated "R" movies (legally this time) and seniors finally hit that milestone of turning 18. They finally get to vote, rent hotel rooms, and other important things. Junior Julie Odd celebrated her sixteenth birthday this year on Novemeber 6th, obtaining the rights to drive.

PARTY UP! Remember those old school birthday parties? NOO?!?!? You know those ones with all the kids running wild and your parents are chasing after everyone the whole time trying to keep things in order? Lets not forget those ghetto fabulous homemade cakes and those awesome gifts you received. You know those parties that occured that your parents have pictures of and seem to pull out when you have a hot date? You suddenly start to recognize that your friends from the past oddly enough look like your best friends now! Senior Martha Mathis can relate to these times when she blew out the candles at her 5th birthday party at the Aquia Harbor preschool. Her friends and classmates at the time : Matt O'Driscoll, Chris Bartick, Christopher D. Jones and Alice Shin were there to celebrate her birthday with her.

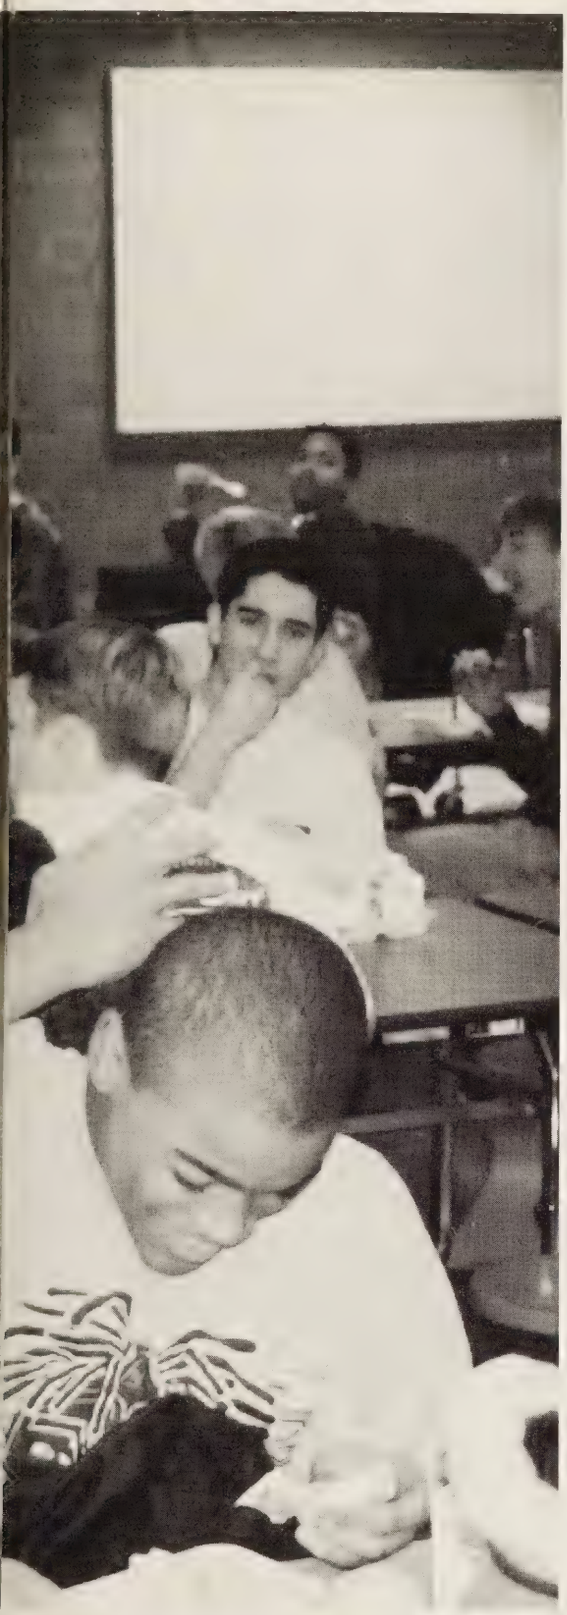
"It was typical of Mr. Boatwright to dress up as a turkey because he supports the student body and promotes school spirit



GOBBLE, GOBBLE, GOBBLE! For Thanksgiving 2000 the SCA sponsored a fundraiser to raise money for the winter dance. Students donated loose change to support the teacher they thought best suited the turkey costume. The fundraiser was a success. The SCA raised $143 for the dance. Who was the winner of the contest? Assistant Principal Mr. Boatwright won by a landslide. As the winner of the contest his duties were to wear a turkey costume to school the day before Thanksgiving break. As you can see Mr. Boatwright didn't mind wearing the costume, it gave him a chance to interact more with the students. He chose to pick on freshman Leo Breckenridge. "I didn't really like being picked on by a turkey, I mean I was in the middle of eating lunch and Mr. Boatwright just came up and started rubbing my head." Mr. Boatwright said, "It was hot in that outfit but it was worth seeing the look on the kids faces, the kiddie hawks beat me up though. I was a little worried that one of the students might mistake me for their thanksgiving dinner." I wonder who will be the Turkey next year?

NOT JUST ANY OLD PROJECT! During a college Prep 11th grade US/VA History class Ms. Pasceri writes on the board about the project the students were beginning. The students worked in groups of four and had one week to finish. These 11th grade students were to imagine what it would be like to be a family of immigrants coming to the United States before the 1930's. They were to pick a country, research immigration in that area, then come up with a creative way to present it to the class. Some creative ideas the students came up with were power point projects, posters, plays, skits, movies, and slide shows. Junior Lisa Anderson commented," Ms. Pasceri is a really good teacher. Her sarcasm and humor make History fun and interesting." When asked about immigration and students Ms. Pasceri replied, "Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breath free." a famous quote that welcomed the immigrants to America.

A FEW WORDS FROM BP'S MAN OF LAW....."A sad statement of our society is instead of looking to do the right, some are looking for loop-holes that enable them to do wrong. I am often asked by students how they can get into a fight and not have to face discipline from the law. Instead of looking for ways to increase violence, let us as faculty, staff and students dedicate ourselves to resolving the conflicts through intervention and conflict mediation. Recently, two young men decided to resolve their differences through violence. They are now in jail facing murder charges. Don't be a victim or a defendant. Choose the right way. Please take care of yourselves and be safe." compliments of the Hawkeye. We all see Deptuty Smith patroling our school, doing his best to make us all feel safe. This is a perfect example of how much Deputy Smith does for the students here at BPHS. After getting a flat tire Deputy Smith helps junior Melanie Thomas fix her flat tire. SOL's, SAT's, ACT's, and GPA's are common abbreviations among high school students. With juniors and seniors looking towards college, EXCELLING at the SAT's or ACT's is a must. With the newly introduced SOL tests academics were stressed ABOVE all else. Classes took fewer field trips and THE number of pep rallies went down. We worked together on projects and group assignments. Being above the REST was not emphasized because WE wanted to be "As One". We have worked together and we ARE stronger. Together we became U N S U R P A S S A B L E.

LEARNING MATH

But Science was the Mission

Spread by Danica Horrell and Stephanie Englman

Is the answer 245? Or is it amoeba? Sometimes we just don't know. What some of us also do not realize is how valuable our math and science classes are. Some might also wonder whether we will ever use the information again. Despite how uniportant you might think science and math classes might be, a wrong answer can become a lethal matter. Senior Laura Nelton, future pre-med student, said, "If you don't calculate right you can hurt someone." Think about it that way, don't you think paying attention in class is a good thing to do?

Sometimes we just have to grin and bear it, take things one class at a time, and just relax! Everyone has to struggle through the work: the headaches and the heartaches, the A's through the F's. They key is to enjoy everything while you still can and appreciate it all, like freshman Hayley Turner who said, "I always find time to do my homework and I find time to do fun things. I do what I need to get done first, and then the rest of my time is left to the more enjoyable things."

ITS THE LITTLE DIFFERENCES Think high school is just like middle school? Not! Most think high school has so much more to offer than middle school. Not everyone has that opinion way though, freshman Mike Hewitt said, "I liked eighth grade better, it had more hands-on activities."

"THEY'RE ALL GONNA LAUGH AT YOU!" Seniors Andy Falkenstein and P.J. Kania have fun joking around, making fun of Senior Nick Garza's height. They were all candidates for president during the mock elections in Mrs. Singh's government class. When asked how he liked Mrs. Singh's class, P.J. said, "It's an awesome class because Mrs. Singh makes learning fun by letting people joke around and have a good laugh every now and then."

Four score and seven years ago, our Fore Fathers opened peoples' eyes to torturous classes and piles of homework. Now, the tradition has been continued into modern day schools. From the snow-topped mountains of Austria to the Star Spangled nation of America, students learn about their history as well as subjects of literature. History classes range from learning about the beginnings of civilization to the hight of the Roman Empire, and everything in between and since. It is important to learn about history because in the words of General Robert E. Lee, "It is history that teaches us to hope." From basic pronoun use to college entrence exam essays, English classes at Brooke Point are complex. Literature allows students to view the world from different perspectives and open their minds to new worlds. Mrs. Eshelman said she likes teaching English "because of the discussions you can have when talking about novels, there is not only one answer." Maybe this is true of all things in life, we just have to open our eyes to find out.

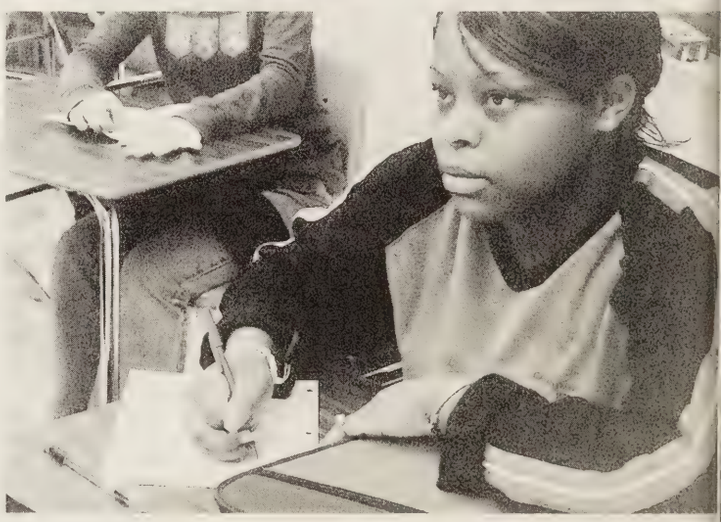
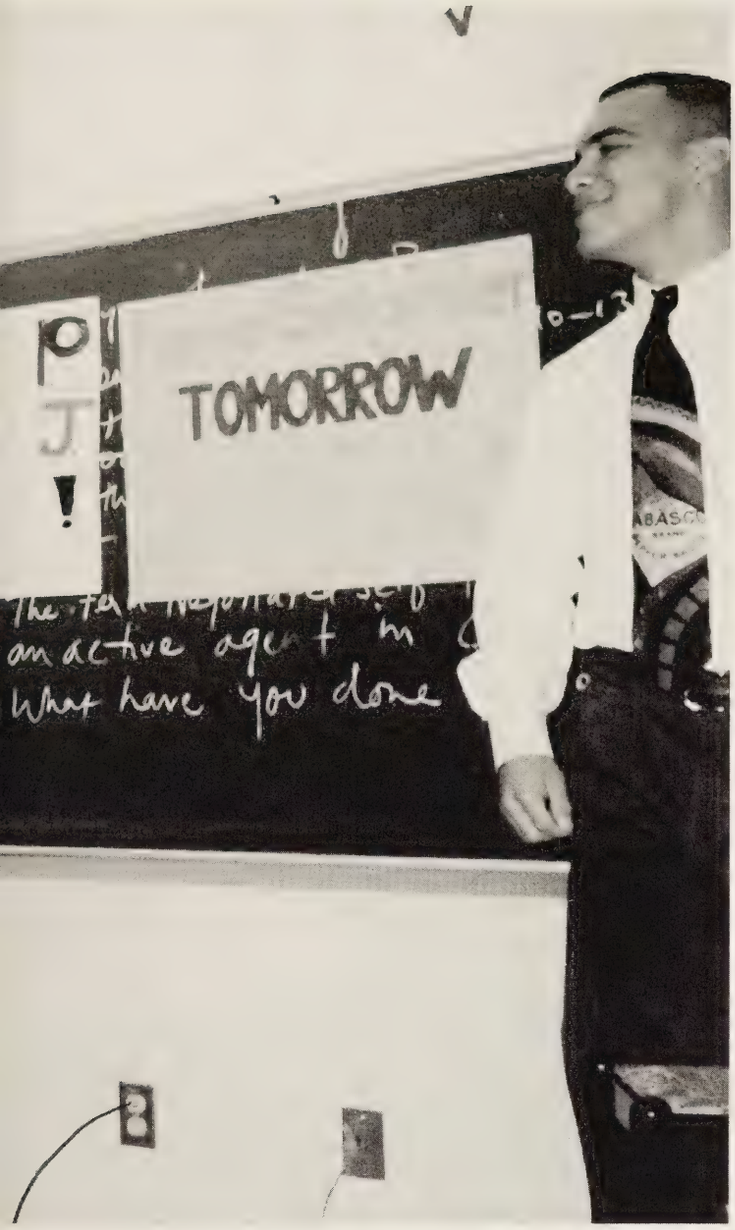
BLAST FROM THE PAST!

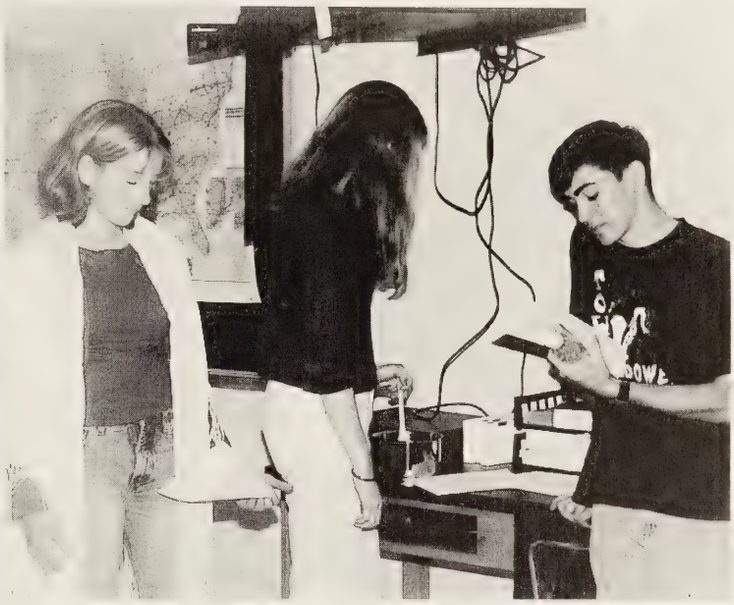


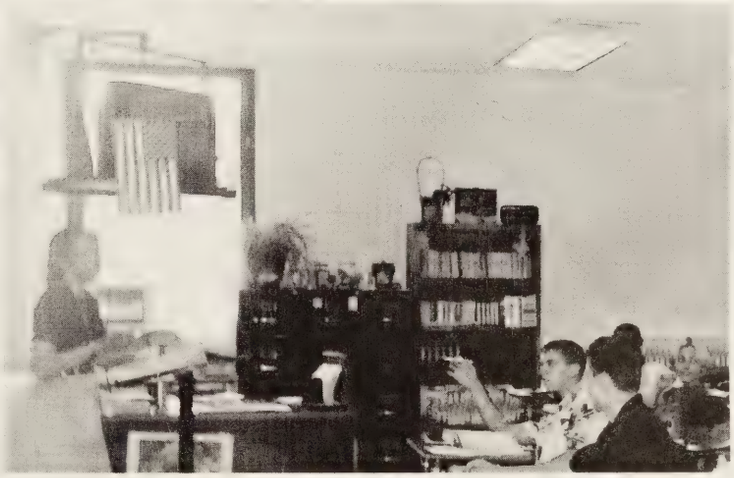
ALL EYES FORWARD Freshman Jessica Smith takes notes in her English class so that she knows she'll be ready if her teacher decides to give a pop quiz. To ensure that you get good grades, you should always pay close attention in all of your classes.

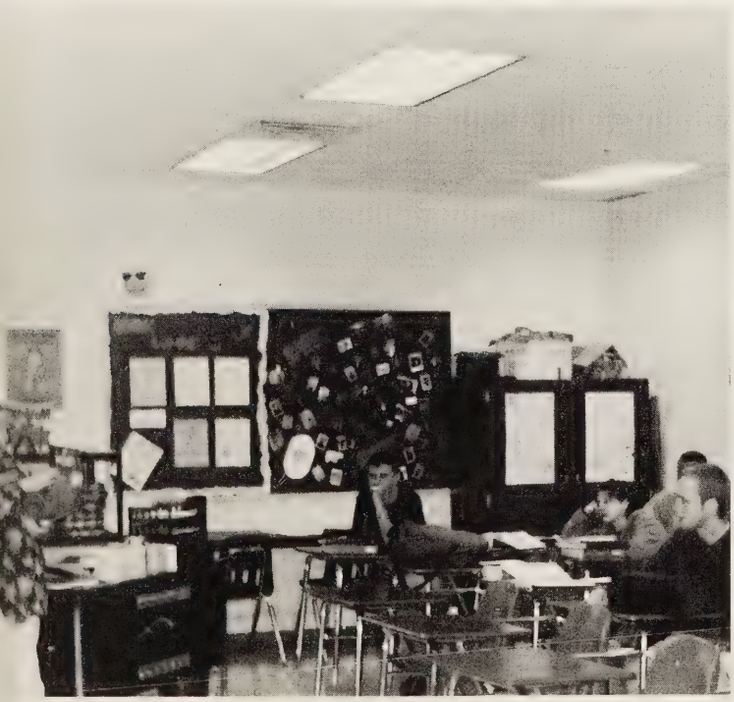
"I enjoy seeing Ms. Field's face everyday." junior Kenny Cook "I learn a lot from Mrs. Homung's class and she's very nice." junior



ACTION! Preforming a skit in front of their class, Juniors Kristen Shusko, Kristen Benson, and Joshua Bloom, act out the lives of Irish immigrants in America. "It was history in action; it made history very real and personal." said Joshua. Mr. Shelzo's AP History classes have done many other activities throughout the year. They even did a stagged trial, preformed in the actual courthouse. Shusko says, "It makes history easier to picture and understand."







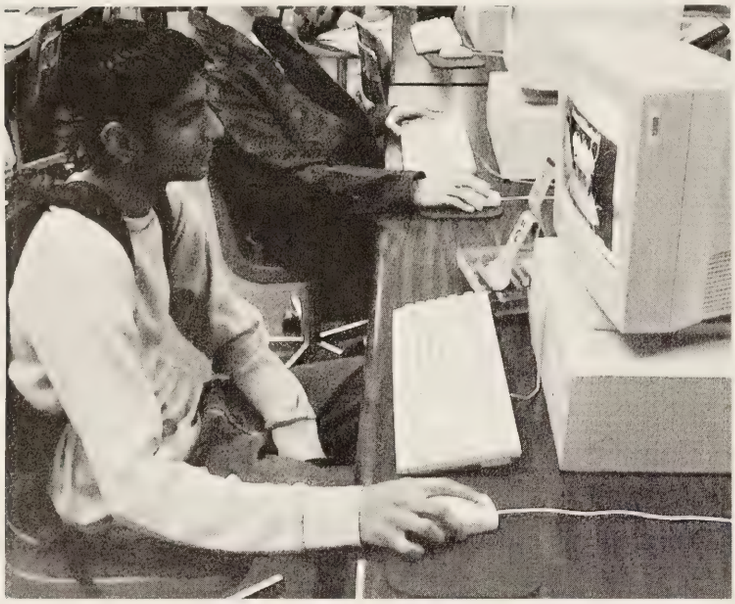
LISTEN UP! Freshman Chris St. John patiently waits with his hand raised, to ask his English teacher, Mrs. Dozier, a question about the book that they were reading. They read many books throughout the year, among them was the novel, "The Crossing."

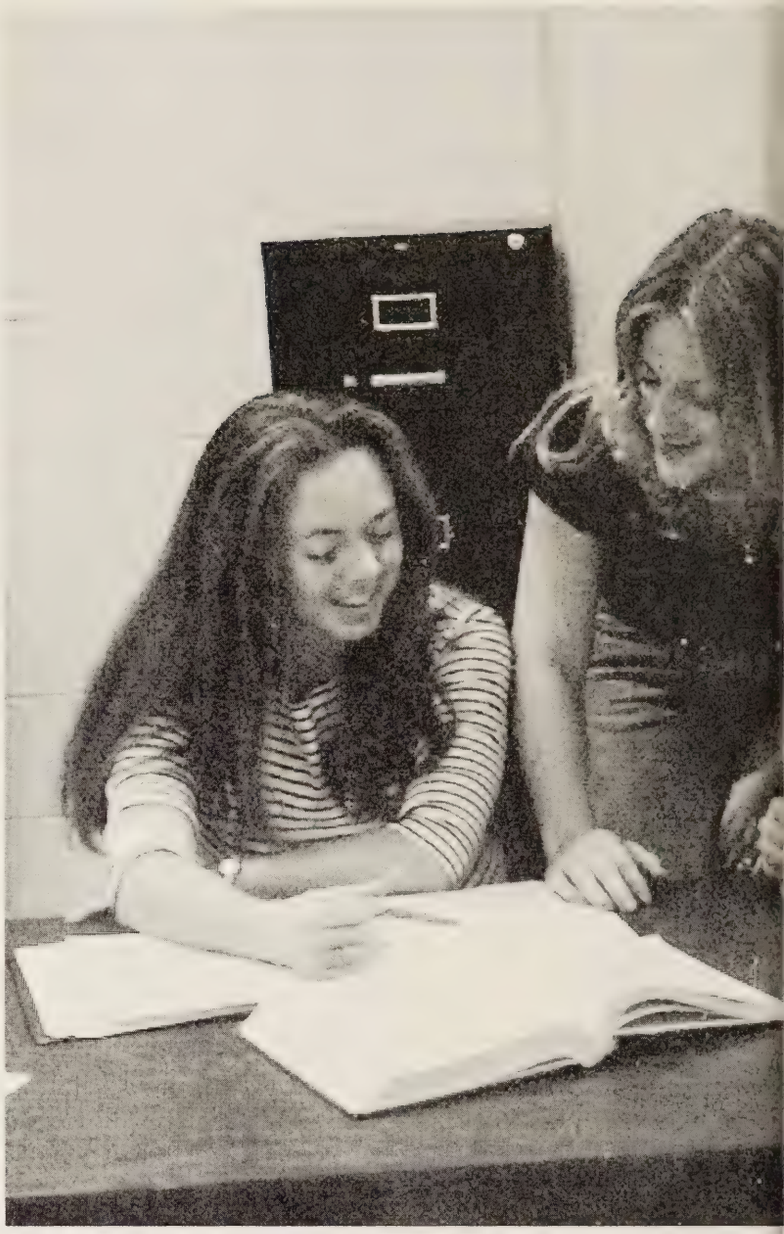
LOVE TO LEARN Seniors Richard Crazythunder, Amber Jenkins and Jason Ellis, listen carefully as their teacher, Mrs. Southall, explains to them the importance of the Anglo-Saxons during the era when British Literature was popular.

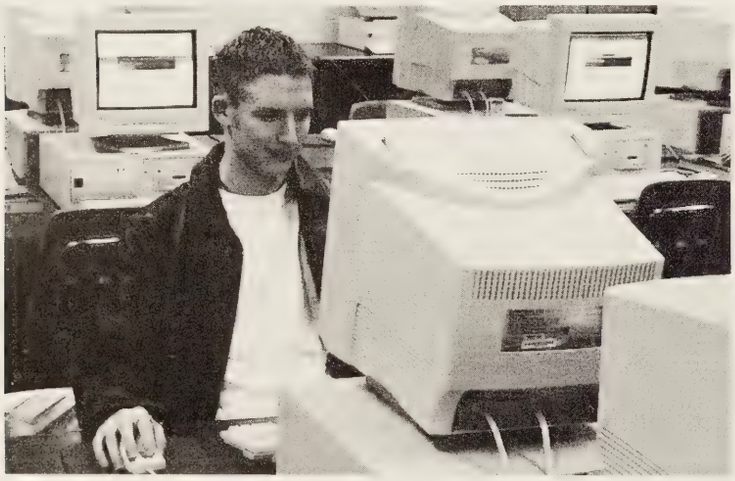
Ordanel Fernandez "The stupid comments people make in class makes the class entertaining." sophomore Lisa Kulynych

WHAT DO YOU THINK? Seniors Kammie Bingham, Jenna Lowndes, and Christina Serva cram in a little studying before a Business Law quiz one afternoon. "I wanted to take a class that was challenging," Christina said.

GETTING STARTED Senior Nitin Patel starts up the Automated Accounting software to begin his assignment. "I like accounting because it is a good skill to have for any career," Nitin said.

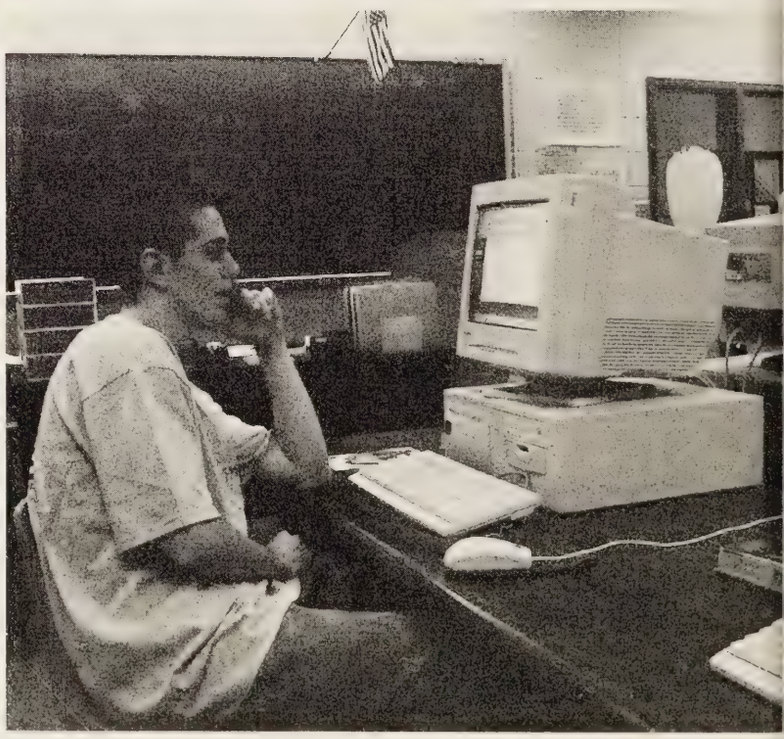




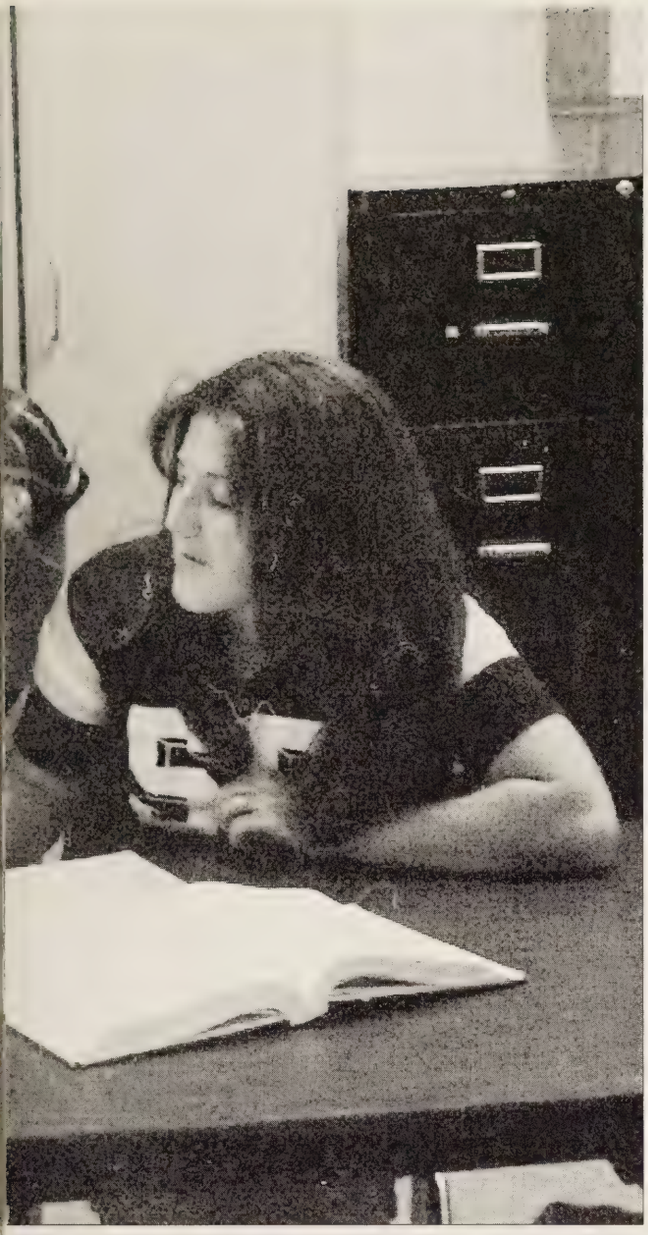


EXCITING FACTS "I took Advanced Accounting to further my knowledge of the exciting world that is accounting," senior Andrew Shirk said as he displays several financial statements during second period.

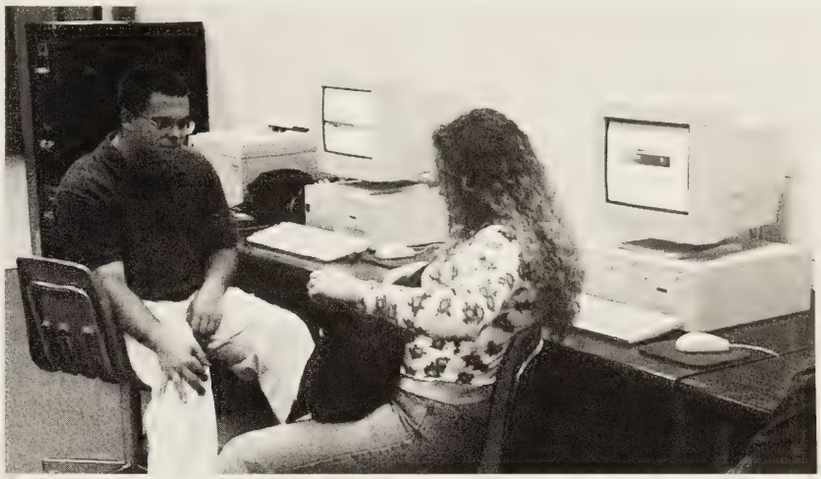
STUMPED During second period of Advanced Accounting senior George Knauf stares at his computer screen. "Business classes help me gain the skills needed for the future and my career," George commented.



"I have learned so much about laws dealing with coprporations and businesses." senior Stephanie Hatlem



BREAK TIME During second period Advanced Accounting seniors Thomas McGowan and Michelle discuss their assignment. "I think that everyone should take at least one computer class since they are the future," Thomas admitted.



Business classes are preparation courses for students looking to major in Business or for general knowledge for the future. "Business Law provides fundamentals for business that helps in everyday life. I took the class to learn how to decipher the law from fiction to become more knowledgable about our American Court System," Jenna Lowndes admitted.

Most students who spent time in the business department believed that the classes were worth while because they were classes that benifited them in the future.

Many clubs have been formed to further students' business education and involvement. This is what FBLA and DECA stood for. These clubs go on to competition and prove their interest and dedication.

"Que pasa calabasa?" "Nada nada limonada." For anyone who is in any of Senor Rice's spanish classes, that is just a common everyday phrase. For students who took foreign language as an elective got a chance everyday to learn the language, history, and culture from another country. The languages offered were american sign language, french, german, latin, and spanish. Wether it was hearing a story in Senor Felix's spanish class, or signing songs in american sign language, students learned to master the skills of another language. Students were able to hold "fiesta's" and cook the traditional food from another culture. With many projects assigned, students had to plan an actual news show, read and translate stories, draw pictures, and perform skits. Some students used these skills when actually visiting another country. Junior Meghan Miller said "when I went to Spain over the summer, knowing the basics really helped." Students had the opportunity to go to Spain, and other countries with the school. Unpredictable describes the language of the students.

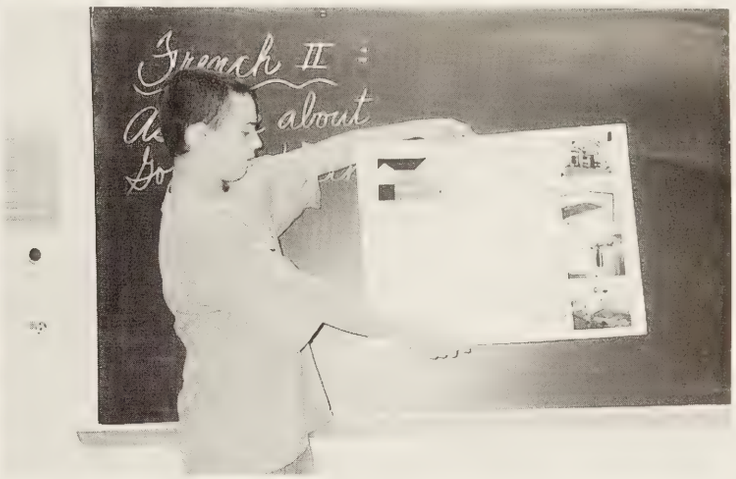
"Latin is good to learn both as a language and as some history." freshmen Pam Day

"CAN YOU REPEAT THAT?" Seniors Crystal Fry and Pricilla Umana practise their signs before class. "Signing is great, more people should get involved with it. It's also good to talk about people without them knowing." Pricilla said.

"PRESENTING..." In his French II class, sophomore Billy Montminy shows the class his vocabulary project. "It was a lot of work to make it, but the class atmosphere is great," explained Billy.



"HOW DO YOU SAY..." "I enjoy doing the buddy activities in class," stated freshmen Kate Barth. Her and sophomore Clay Clark discussed the classwork in their french II class.

TRY SOME BREAD OF THE DEAD! At Senor Rice's Dia de Muertes (Day of the Dead Celebration) Sophomore Alex Miller gives sophomore Celeste LeReoux a taste of the traditional bread. Counting time, keeping your focus, and working together are just a few of the charactistics of an over all band member. The band members practice day after day during school to perfect the results of their concerts. There are a large number of students with talent and ability to play in the band or orchestra. According to senior Amanda Amoroso, "It helps to play an instrument and have a good instructor like Mr. Doug Armstrong. Not only does band make you want to continue to play, but it also helps you to meet new people." You can see performances by the band and orchestra during the winter and spring at their concerts. In order to go on field trips the band has several candy fundraisers throughout the year. "Fundraisers allow us to have some fun on trips and we can buy new uniforms," stated junior Cori Bowker. This year the band's spring trip is to Orlando, Flordia and Disney World. Orchestra is a combination of all string instruments. Juniors Matt Bradly and Kira Runkle show thier skills while practicing their scales on the trombone. Kira stated, "I play the trombone because it seemed like the easiest instrument to learn."

PLAY THAT MUSIC! Juniors Kim Ward and Jennifer Wiley stay after school one day to practice their music with the aid of the band director, Mr. Armstrong. If a student was having trouble with the music they could stay after and work with Mr. Armstrong until they got it right.

HO, HO, HO! Mr. Boatwright dressed as Santa Claus and came out on stage during the Chorus winter concert. Somehow Mr. Boatwright always seemed to be stuck with dressing up in costume on the holidays.

Rolling out the red carpet, screaming fans, lights flashing from cameras; this is what goes on at major music awards. Soon you may see a Brooke Point choral student walking up to the podium.

You may think that chorus is an easy "A". The truth is that Brooke Point chours students work just as hard or even more so than other activites throughout the school.

"I am in Chorus because i want to be on Broadway someday, and you have to know how to sing." commented junior Samantha Boscia.

Not only are students trained to sing but they are also taught how to use their talents to put on stellar performances such as competitions, school performances, and the Renaissance Feaste.

Many students consider chorus as a window of oppurtunity to become a star. What started out to be just a fun class turned out to be the beginning steps to a paved road to sucess.

HITTING THE HIGH NOTES In order to be truly great singers, students must put in hours of long and ardous practice. Sacrificing valuable free time is a necessity when striving for perfection. These chorus students have the dedication to succeed.

P.E classes are important to building physical strength in students. Through conditioning and aerobic exercise, students build endurance. There are other benefits to a well organized physical education program, for example teaching good sportsmanship, cooperation and team work.

A big part of sophomores curriculum is drivers education. For nine weeks students must leran the rules of the road. Assignments in this class vary. From getting articles about accidents to wearing drunk goggles, students learn the responsibility that comes along with getting a license.

As for juniors and seniors P.E is more of a strength building class. They focus on working in the weight room rather then playing as many games as the other classes.

The spell checker! It may be the most used tool in the newspaper and yearbook rooms. Both staffs work hard to create interesting publications for the student body.

Newspaper is fun as well. "We're a big group of sisters who can talk to each other for help and advice, and yes, we do fight!" said junior Tracey Reed. The entire staff needs to work together in order to make the paper work.

UNBELIEVABLE

When the bell rings some students head for home, yet many head for classrooms to prepare for club meetings. JOINING certain clubs for some PEOPLE is just a matter of showing up WITH your dues. Less common clubs however require a certain GPA or grade in a class to be a member. Every club in the school is required to be related to A class. It is easy to find your INTEREST when looking for a club to join. The diversity of the clubs BRINGS a varity of students together. It is UNBELIEVABLE that so many people can come together for the same purpose and produce such amazing RESULTS in the community, while still having fun.

Have you ever thought of who really runs this school? I mean who is REALLY in charge? Some might say the faculty, but the fact of the matter is the SCA is a big reason the school runs so smoothly. From setting up school dances, helping out the community, planning fundraisers (such as car washes), the SCA officers have many responsibilites that come with their jobs. Helping the class and the school is part of the everyday job, and for a new freshman and sophmore officers its a lot of responsibility to hold. Often it is hard to get the jist of the position. "Being freshman treasurer is great, you get to know what is going on in the school," said Betsy Hagwood. It was all about getting used to new people and positions for the new class officers and SCA. "It is a lot of hard work being the sophomore class secretary, but working with Celeste LeRoux, Erin Smith, and Torreye Jones makes it tons of fun. With having an all-girl committee you never know what to expect." said Tameka Jones. Never knowing what to expect made the year quite unpredictable for the SCA and the officers.

The Brooke Point Student Council Assosciation, better known as the SCA, helps to assist and coordinate many of the important functions we have at our school.

One of the tasks that the junior class helps with is the prom. Junior class officers must ensure that they raise enough money to put the dance together, or else they could be faced with a bunch of angry seniors.

The senior officers play their role as well. They mostly help Mr. Nichols plan out their graduation, but they also help to keep school spirit alive throughout the year.

Although each member is equally important, the real "big dogs" of the SCA are the SCA officers. They are the representatives of the student body. They are the ones that voice our opinions and give the administration new ideas to help keep our school number one.

Without the SCA, our school would most likely be a very boring place, based on the ideas of a bunch of older, unoriginal people.

What do artists such as Picasso or Monet have in common with students of the National Art Honor Society? They both have a great love for art and both started experimenting with different art forms at young ages.

"National Art Honor Society gives people who are seriously interested in art a chance to go beyond the curriculum in everyday art classes. It's great for people who plan to do art all of their lives," senior Matt Wade commented.

Art teacher and sponser of the club, Kathleen Adams, added, "Not only are [students] interested in furthering their art experiences, but they are dedicated to using heir talants to help others in the community".

A simple piece of artwork for a show, painting windows for a daycare, or even painting the senior courtyard are examples of students' work. Maybe one day you'll see their work in a famous art gallery.

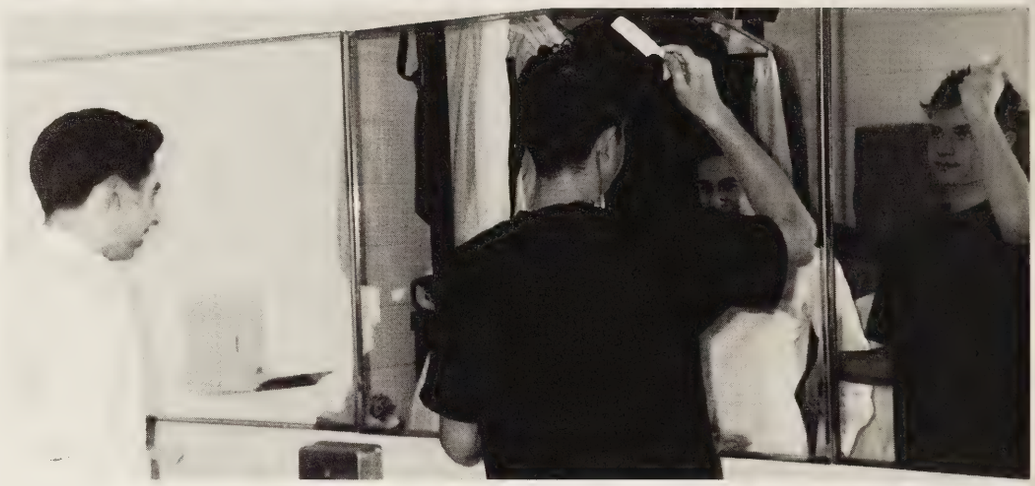
WHATS YOUR GREATEST FEAR?
A performer has many fears. In theater, as in any of the performing arts, there are many pressures: to memorize lines, to know cues, and to stay in character. The biggest part of putting on a show though, is pleasing the audience. Juniors Chad Foreman and Matt Meixler prepare to go onstage before a performance. "My greatest fear during a performance is that the audience will not enjoy it," said Chad.



New techniques and ideas were brought into the theater, and the blood of the Brooke Point Players was changed forever. It may not seem that much has changed, but its all of the little differences below the surface that the rest of us never see. Because of this, one would think that the Players would be in a negative frame of mind. After all, with new directors and new ways of dealing with issues in the theater, anything can happen. This is not the case. Players President, senior Meg McEvoy said, "I wasn't expecting it to be good or bad, I went into this year with a neutral attitude and tried to keep unbaised thoughts about it." Unbaised and neutral, a concept that has benefited the Players greatly. They have demonstrated their fluidity and ability to adjust to any obstacle that presents itself and still have a successful year. That is what being a part of the Player family is all about, becoming an indestructable unit that can weather any storm.

LISTEN UP! To make theater successful, everyone involved must listen to what others have to say. Junior Matt Meixler said, "It is important to listen to each other because everyone has to be on the same page – in sync with each other. A play won't flow if everybody is trying to do their own separate thing. Actors need to compliment and support each other." Senior Meg McEvoy agrees with this also. She said, "Onstage communication is really important because the whole point of theater is communicating with the audience and the fellow actors, not just reading lines." It is not hard for the cast, tech crew, and directors to stick by each other and become fast friends while working on a show. When everyone involved with the play sticks by each other, it only makes the performance even better. As Matt says, "One of the best forms of rehersal is just spending time with your cast mates, even if you're not working on the show. If cast members learn to work well together and understand each other's personalities, then they can truly interact with each other onstage and do it rather than act it."

STYLIN' AND PROFILIN' Junior Kevin Ruh gets the royal treatment as junior Melanie Thomas brushes his hair before a performance. In theater, both guys and girls get to join in on the fun of putting on make-up and fixing their hair. Kevin said, "I don't put it on regularly, so I have others do it for me. It's all a part of acting."

UNSEEN HEROES Not just behind-the-scene lackies, the tech crew keeps the show running smoothly. They supply the lights, sound effects, and the sets, but are not recognized as the force that powers the theater. Junior Candice Shipp said, "It is exciting, fun, and hard work, but the results are worth it."

The Interact Club has made a difference in the school from the beginning of the year to the end. Students come together to help their community with everything from tutoring younger students or to playing Santa's helpers.

"We get to see people in a totally different way, and that's a good way," said Mrs. Hornung. Everyone in the club is involved in the community. "I enjoy Interact because it gives me the opportunity to put something back into the community. The members are so enthusiastic. It's really great to see so many teens involved," said senior Crystal Adcock. If you want to make a difference in your community and around the world join Interact!

The students were to match the entrepenuers to the businesses they established. Janelle commented, "When I first got the worksheet I thought it would be really hard. But it was actually pretty easy and we all helped eachother." A usual meeting consists of watching business videos, planing project ASC, discussing fundraisers and doing fun worksheets. Senior Andrew Shirk said, "I joined FBLA because I want to go into business in the future. Plus, no one is better at word finds then me and Nitin." Junior Tom Gibson agreed saying "I also joined FBLA to be a part of a group that focuses on business. I plan to be involved in business when I get older, so this is a beginning for myself. It is also a lot of fun!"

Deca is the marketing club that focuses on the business students of the future. This club, lead by Mrs. McKee, participates in many activities that help them develop their business skills. Students, as members of this organization, learn design, management, and financial planning. They learn how to make decisions on new products, and how to advertise them on the market. They are also given the opportunity to participate in district, state and national competitions. Senior Crystal Fry said, "I joined DECA because I'm going to be the marketing manager of an International bank or large company when I get out of college, and I think DECA is a good way to start to learn how to market and advertise products."

FBLA is another organization that dedicates its time to developing the business sense of its student members. This club does many things. Some projects include: collecting toys and juice boxes for sick children (project ASC), and they compete against other schools in business competitions.

Spanish is a very common language that you can find throughout the world. For example many textbooks have Spanish translations in the back. If you think Latin is an outdated language you should try joining the club. Latin can be very helpful if you plan on entering the medical field or want to do well on the verbal section of your SAT's.

Languages, cultures, and worlds are just some of the many differences you experience being in the foreign language classrooms. Not only do the Spanish and Latin Clubs allow students to participate in recreational activites, they also give students a taste of something new. Today the Latin and Spanish languages greatly influence the world around us. These clubs have allowed the students to have more of an overview of the languages they were learning and the countries that speak these languages. Each meeting was organized by the president of the clubs and was usually held after school. Being in these clubs is just one more way to get involved in your school and expand your learning capabilities.

The Spanish Club meetings this year were held in the school library after school and usually once a month. The students split off into groups of five or six people and the first group to get all the correct answers to the questions recieved a giant candy bar. To find the answers, the students could use computers, books or other sources of information provided in the library. I also wanted to learn about the cultural feelings of the Hispanic lifestyle because I feel as if I can make a difference," said Justin.

Awww... the breath-taking sites of Paris, the mouth-watering food of Germany, what's not to love about these countries? Many students today have found a great interest in learning about the French and German cultures.

The French Club, headed up by Ms. Bowery, hit off the year right away with getting the students involved. Meetings are used as a way to keep the members speaking the language, as well as discovering the traits and traditions of the French culture.

This year the group has done many activities to orientate themselves with French tradition. In late November they took a trip to the French restaurant, Le Petit Auberge. At the restaurant, the group got to taste real French food and feel the enviroment of a cafe, like one would be in Paris.

The German Club was headed up by Frau Johnson and had a great following of students this year. The group started the year with a trip to Bush Gardens and a glass etching activity towards the holiday season. Mostly know for it's German candy sale, the club does various activities throughout the year.

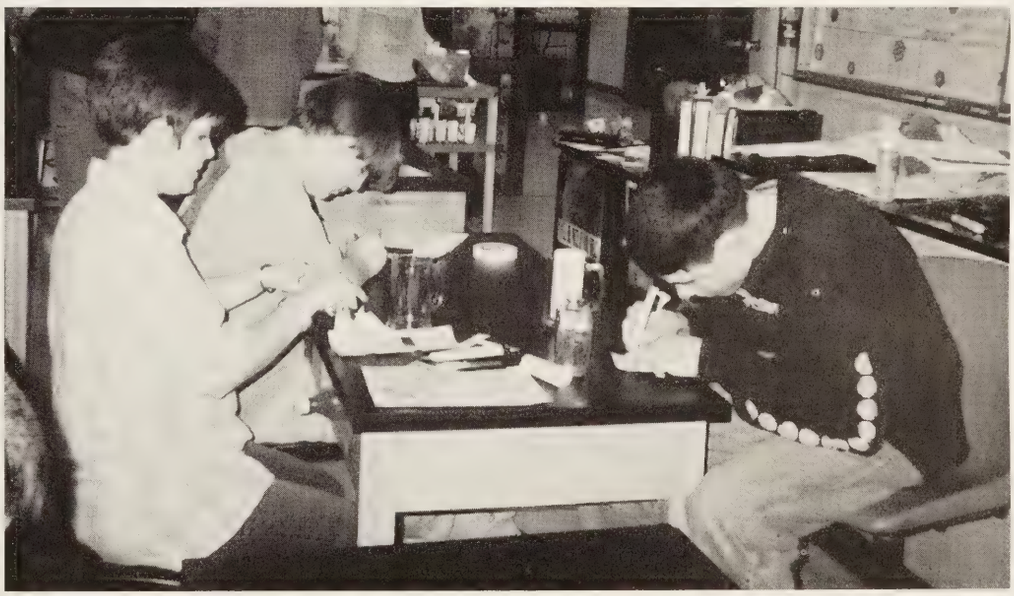
MMMM!! ESCARGO! At the annual trip to the French Cafe, Le Petite Auberge, juniors Christine Miller and Jamie Johnston have a conversation in French, while junior Troy Vansummermen and sophomore Shaun Smith eavesdrop. Going to the restaurant allows the students to feel a real French environment, as if they were on the Champs-Ellese themselves. For Jamie, her most memorable moment was "when Christine tried escargo for the first time. She was squeeling and complaining about the texture the whole time."

CONCENTRATION! Percision is the key to this game as Junior Nathan Malone cuts out his design on the glass. The group does glass etching every year which the students really enjoy.



ETCH-A-SCETCH! At a German Club meeting, the group does some glass etching before the winter break. Heather Cline, Justin Malone, and William Watts cut their designs before adding the finishing touches.

GET A MOVE ON IT! Michael Bartosch is boarding the bus after school on his way to a match. On the bus the team had pep talks and they ate brownies to get them pumped up for the match. The brownies were "brain food" for the team. During matches the team tried to cheer each other on without making noise because noises would distract the participants. The team often traveled to other schools on the weekend to compete in matches which could last all day long.

A group of students who are on a quest for knowledge make up the academics team. This team is made up of students who study and practice for the chance to demonstate their academic prowess. In tournaments organized by the school, students showcase the amount of material that they have learned and compete against other schools in the area. The goal here...to be the smartest team on the block.

The History Club also has similar goals, they too are on an academic quest. They are attempting to focus their attention on learning the events of the past. This is very important. According to many scholars history repeats itself and unless one learns from the past one is doomed to repeat it. Members of the history club attempt to share this knowledge with members of the student body.

The interest in these clubs remain low but the clubs' impact on the students in them is high.

LET'S WORK TOGETHER! The members of the FCCLA learn to work coopertively and teach the children to work with one another. Junior Shane Murphy did his part by helping the Kiddie-Hawks create a picture to take home to their parents. The topics of these pictures varied. Some students drew pictures of their homes and family members. Other students drew pictures of activities that they enjoyed doing with their families. The fact that these students were encouraged to develop their creativity is excellent. What a way to establish a solid head start. Shane said, "The kids are great. They don't whine a lot and they are pretty well behaved. I actually look forward to going to class." A fellow classmate of Shane agrees with him. Sophomore Bo Williams proclaimed, "I enjoy working with the kids. I suggest you take this class next year!" What an excellent suggestion for eveyone who has an interest in pursuing a career in the childcare industry. This was also a class that was helpful in teaching students the responsibilty that is associated with having a child.

DON'T SPILL ANYTHING! In order to keep a kiddie hawk's shirt clean, sophomore Christy Click puts a protective shirt on him. The kids were about to paint. "I love kids, I've learned a lot. It's been a good expierence working with kids," stated Christy.

Keeping the little kids entertained, teaching the children how to share, and making sure the children are happy at all times are just some of the many things the members of the FCCLA do. Showing up to class everyday teaches the students how to interact with younger children. The class is designed to teach the students how to deal with a life situation they may or may not be in. Junior Jennifer Rudy stated, "I've alway been interested in little kids. They are a lot of fun and you never know what they are going to say or do. I can't help but laugh at them. However, I will say on the other hand it's a lot of work to keep them happy." In this class, you never know what to expect on a day to day basis or what your going to have to deal with next. It's the one class without a teacher made lesson plan. Each day stations are set up for the children where they can enjoy playing with different toys. Hey, what else can you ask for? When it comes down to the bottom of it, it's just a period where a kid can be a kid and experience what it really takes to raise a child.

The Animal Protection Club has contributed many hours helping the animals in our immediate environment. They have collected food, toys, and found homes for many animals in Stafford County.

Another activity the APC participates in is fundraisers. They have held car washes and t-shirt sales that contributed money to the Pet Assistance League (PAL). They also assist with the Bob Epps Scholarship, and help people whose pets need surgery, or other medical attention.

The APC is truly a great club to be a part of. They help families by donating money and supplies to those who need it. They mark birds' nests around the school and contact the appropriate professionals to come and move the nest if necessary.

The Animal Protection Club donates, fundraises, and contributes to various animals that are in need and for them we are greatful.

 QUESTIONS? Club Sponsor, Mrs. Sanger helps senior Heather Jones with fundraisng information during an afternoon meeting. Mrs. Sanger takes a big role helping the club members with their activities and meeting agendas. "Animal Protection gives people the opportunity to take care of and learn more about the animals in our environment," Heather said.

FUNNY BUSINESS Senior Co-Presidents Kevin Kameda and Scarlet Dangerfield laugh at a joke made by Kevin during a Wednesday meeting. During meetings, the APC talks about ways to help animals that have no homes and reduce the starvation and abuse that they might go through. The Animal Protection Club sponsored an pet drive to raise food, toys and other pet items that could be donated to the local animal shelter on Onville Road. The club also sponsored animals and tried to take care and make sure that the local animals were not being harmed or abandoned in anyway. Many students and animals benefited from the volunteerism of the club's participants.

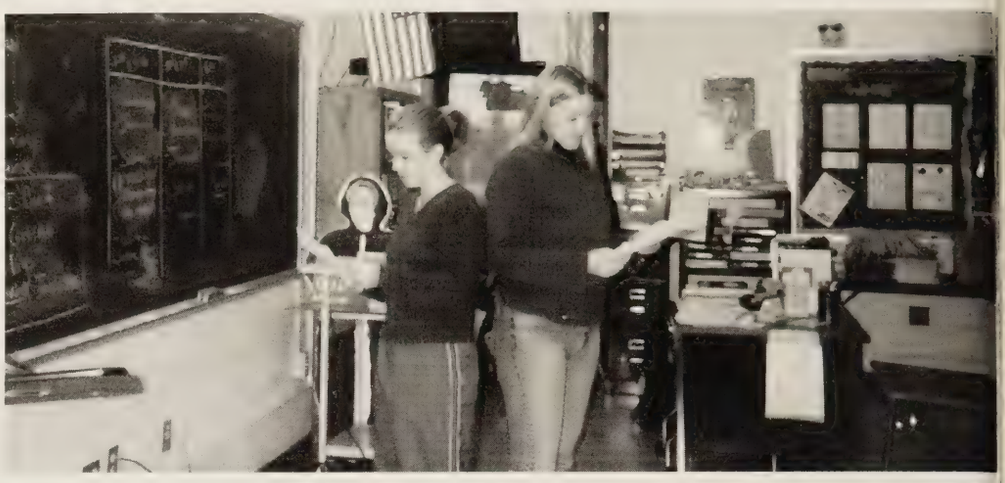
"I didn't know what I was getting into, but I love Forensics!" senior Stephanie Hatlem



PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT Only one week left until the big competition, and there are still things to improve on. While staying after school to practice, seniors Amanda Chichester and Stephanie Hatlem recite their piece they prepared for competition. Amanda said, "We were really nervous, but we finished fifth out of eleven which wasn't bad." These two seniors chose to recite their piece together which was unique and uncommon.

ONE LAST TIME Senior Heather Endres goes over her piece to get the words just right. "I've looked forward to this all year, and it was a great experience and all the practicing and studying was well worth it," said Heather. Before the competion, you will see many other members just like Heather that were taking their last moments to study. Judges are strict on accuracy, enunciation, and performance.

Practicing all year can only lead to one thing: Competition. Coming after long months of hard work, the Forensics Club members are ready to recite their stories. Choosing a piece of work can be somewhat difficult. There are different categories that interest different members. Sophomore Danica Hornell told us she chose prose which can be a short story. She hadn't done it before and it was original and creative. "It let me express myself in a postive way," said Danica. Just to be able to get in front of judges and read out loud takes a lot of talent. "I've been doing this for two years." Danica told us, "It just comes naturally to me." Students are judged on the overall presentation. This is all aimed at throughout the year, through their sponser and teacher, Mrs. Mary Southall. Meetings were held once a month to show how far along they had come, while practicing on their own free time. Despite the big competition, these members are putting their minds together creatively all year.

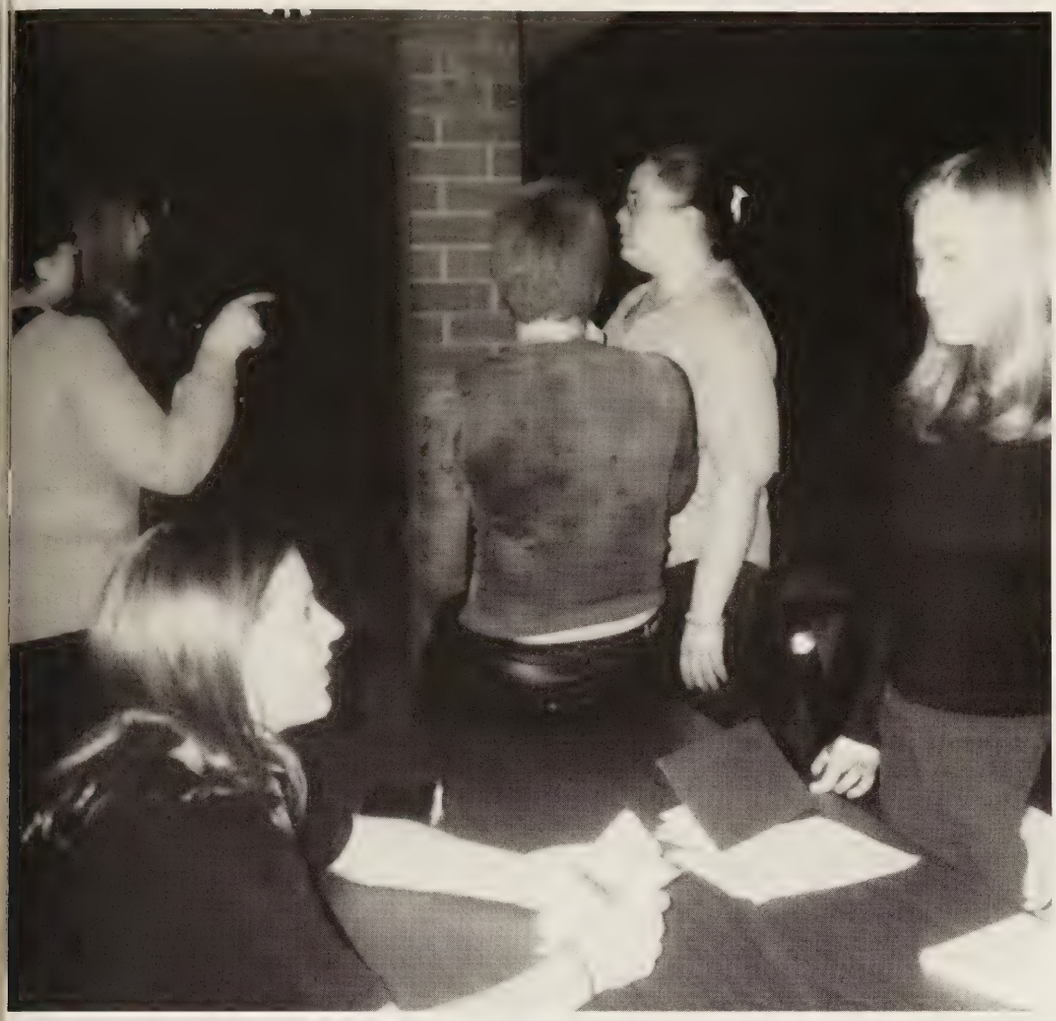
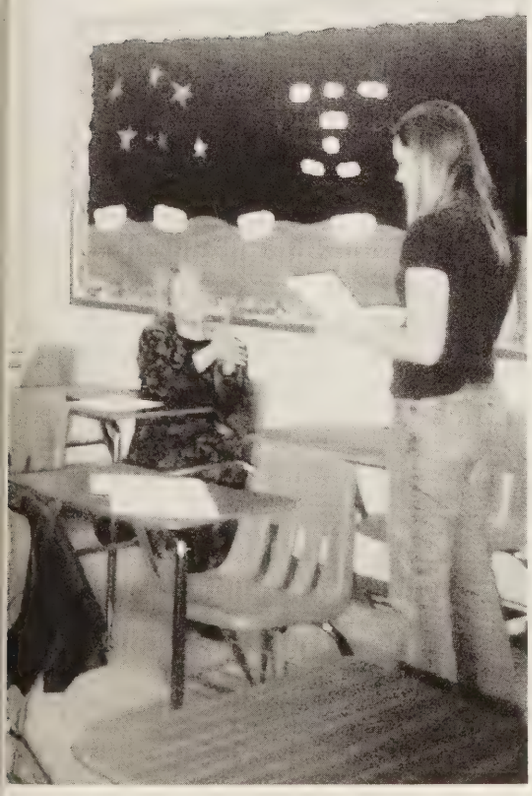
Putting Our Minds Together

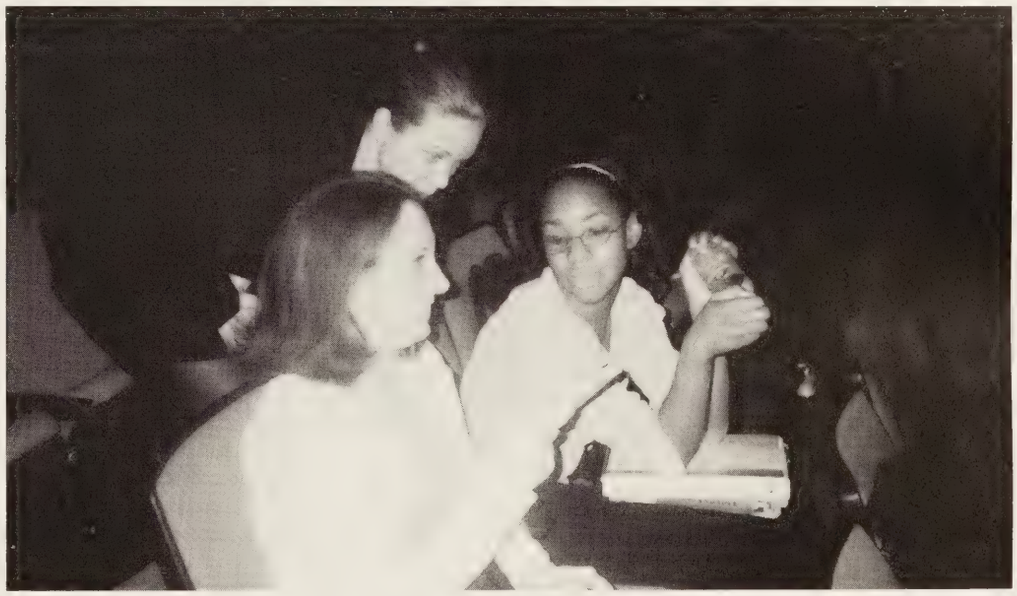
FORENSICS CLUB

"We felt that managing the Forensics team was a vital part of our lives." senior PJ Kania and junior Brandon



TALK IT UP Being in the Forensics Club requires a lot of attention and preparation throughout the year. Despite all this hard work, seniors Krista Lanata and Mikhaila Riede enjoyed starting a new experience. Mikhaila told us, "It was alot of fun, and I'm really glad I joined, but I definately wished I'd joined when I was a freshman." Krista added, "It was a great experience and I really had alot of fun competing." When participating in the competition, besides individual placement, Brooke Point's forensics team did good as a whole. This comes naturally to some students who have the nerve to get up and present in front of an audience. "It's really easy if you practice your piece," said Mikhaila. "You just get up in front of the judges and do your best," stated Krista. The forensics team looks forward to holding more competitions here at Brooke Point.





WHAT DO YOU THINK? While practicing after school one day, junior Nikki Carpenter goes over her short story piece with Mrs. Southall. "It's easy practicing with Mrs. Southall because she's a good listener, and she'll help you out the best she can to improve your piece," commented Nikki.

DID I SAY THAT RIGHT? Waiting to recite her piece with senior Nakisha Moore, senior Tiva Allen said "Nakisha and I were practicing our spelling at the last moment." After being judged and evaluated, these girls both finished very well and were happy with their performance.

LOOKING FOR THE PROBLEM While looking for a break or fracture, seniors Ashley Driscoll and Kevin O'Connor try to determine the problem. "It could be a break, but I'm pretty sure he'll be fine." said Ashley. This is just one of the many hands-on activities students got to take part in.

FROM THE INSIDE OUT Junior Brooke Butler prepares for her quiz on evaluating. "I was doing an evaluation and the Thompson test where you squeeze the tibia and fibula to check for an achilles tendon tear. It was kind of hard to remember, but I think I did a good job," said Brooke.

ICY-HOT Like many of the athletes at BP that need preparation before their events, senior Rachael McIntosh gets icy-hot put on her calf muscle. Running, along with other exercises, can put a strain on anyone's muscles and tendons. That is where Mr. Dennett and the athletic trainers come in. After school, before all the sporting events start, Mr. Dennett is located down in the training room waiting to help students wrap or tape up their aching muscles. Here, before Rachael gets ready to run, Dennett helps to ease her pain. "If I use this stuff on my muscles, it definately helps before I run," said Rachael. senior Dennis O'Connor looks on to get a more closer look. "It's better to see it actually done instead of being told what to do," said Dennis. No matter what happenes to athletes before or after practice, there is always someone that knows what to do. Need ice? An ankle wrapped? A wrist taped? No prob, find your way to the training room.

"Sports medicine is great because we learn so much between paper ball fights." senior Colleen Connell

Learning to be of help in any emergency can come in handy more often then you think. Whether it's learning how to wrap an ankle, tape a wrist, or studying bone fractures, these students are learning to be of help in any emergency. Students like senior Stacey Jones are always on the field willing to help. "It was fun working with Dennett, learning what trainers do and listening to Dennett crack jokes." said Stacey. Students such as Stacey and junior Amanda Guckian can also earn letters in athletic training when training on the field with Mr. Dan Dennett. This requires time and effort on the student. They need to be of as much help as possible.

During class students were given certificates that certified them in CPR and first aid. In addition to being certified, they learn how to determine fractures, and the type and location of each break. While tying this all together, students study about bone disorders, diseases, and certain handicaps that affect the body. While meeting on the last Wednesday of every month, the officers and club members get together to come up with certain benefits for the community. Setting up things such as a sweat shirt drive for the local homeless shelters and planning ways to help athletes were just some of the things the club came up with.

KNOCKED OUT While in sports medicine class, seniors Jason Barg and Brandon Smith practice what they should do if you get an abrasion on your head. "First I had to get a wet rag and apply pressure to his head." commented Jason. "It was fun watching Bradon act as if it were serious." This was just one of the tasks these two students got to participate in while learning hands on. "I like to be the one that gets hurt because I'm really good at it," said Brandon.

ARAGIC LOSS... On October 17, 2000 Senoir Sara Berube was "killed" by a drunk driver. She was just one of the many students chosen to die that day. SADD Vice President Tahina Lavalliere stated, "We attempt to reach out to our peers and let them know the consquences that come with making destructive decisions." SADD wants people to take this day seriously, so they get the student body involved. "Blackout day is a day of mourning those innocent people that were killed in a drunk driving accident," Tahina said.

The American Sign Language Club is designed to help students learn more about the Deaf culture. ASL is becoming increasingly more popular as a foreign language. Mrs. Moffitt, the ASL sponsor said, "I wanted the students who are really interested in ASL to have the opportunity to learn more about the Deaf community through personal contacts and real life experiences." On their excursion to Gallaudet, the students had the experience of being around deaf people. At Gallaudet they were able to observe a wonderful Deaf play. This is just one of the many activities that the ASL club does.

The SADD club is designed for students that are against drunk driving. Students in this club participate every year in Blackout Day. On this day various students are taken out of class to be pinned with a sign stating that they have been killed by a drunk driver. Throughout the day these students are not allowed to talk to any other students except for the chosen ones. It really gets the student body involved with what they believe in. Senior Tahina Lavalliere chose to join the club because, "of all the negative things that go on over the weekends. I felt the need to make our peers aware of the dangers hoping that it would hit home, coming from one of their friends."

GOVERNOR'S SCHOOL

Is There Time To Eat or Sleep?

Spread by:Lisa Webb and Thomas Riddle

Finding time to do homework, play sports, attend club meetings, work, eat, and sleep is hard enough for a lot of high school students, but for Governor's School students, finding time to do daily activities is a lot harder than it is for the rest of us.

Along with being separated from the rest of Brooke Point to attend Stafford High School for half of the day, these students endure long hours of homework from numerous A.P. classes which they are required to take. Sophomore Thomas Riddle said, "It's a really challenging program that makes the students work at home as well as in the classroom."

In addition to their numerous academic achievments all Governor's School locations have distant technology learning. Camaras are set up in each classroom to allow students to colaborate with other students at Colonial Forge and The Spotsylvania Vocational Center.

Some requirements tha are needed to be met in order to be selected for Governor's School are timed essays, interviews, G.P.A. leve and leadership skills. These students work really hard ar should be proud to be a part of such a prestigous academic program. Thomas added, "The curriculum is advanced and requires a lot of time and effort. A lot of technology is involved too." Combined with hard work an energy, success will be obtained for these students.

SNACK TIME! Junior Ryan Ackenhausen takes a break from a stressful class period to munch on a bag of chips.

LOOKING FOR SOMETHING? Junior Mike Hernandez sits in class at Stafford High School discussing his paper with his classmate. Peer editing was something all the students participated in to make their papers even better. Many students enjoyed peer editing because it gave them the chance to work on mistakes they made and it also gave them another point of view to consider when writing the final draft.

The Science club is not your typical club at Brooke Point. They had many challenging tasks to conquer this year. They began the year off with a fun, yet challenging event. The building of model rockets kept them occupied and added some fun for the club. In November they launched the rockets they built onto the lower practice fields.

Another major task of the Science club was making rock candy. Though not as successful as the model rockets were, the students still put in a hard effort and got somewhat close to what they had desired their candy to turn out as.

Ham radio was one of the final projects of the Science club. A Ham radio specialist who also teaches at CFHS came over and lectured the students about Ham radio and some of its uses. "I really enjoyed when we we able to work with the Ham radio and I thought it was really cool when we talked to one guy in Ohio who actually knew where Stafford County was," s junior Heather Jones. Throughout the year the Science club managed to lea a lot and participate in several hands- experiments.

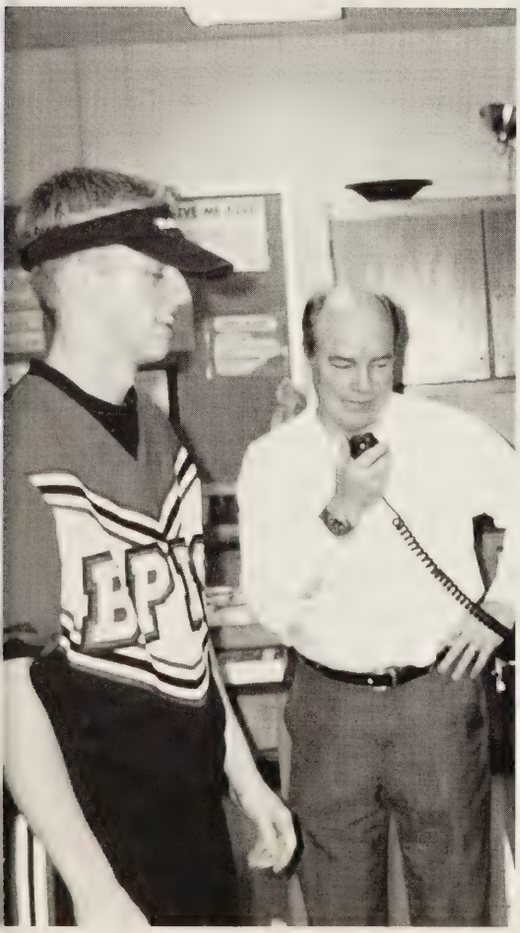
FLYING HIGH In November, the Science Club made model rockets on their own. Science teacher Mr. Matt Frantz-Severn steps away from the rocket about to be launched by junior Heather Jones. Junior Ryan Depew said, "the rockets were a lot of fun. My partner was Heather Jones and our rocket ended up going very far despite its flimsy figure." The Science Club took their rockets down to the top practice field and shot them onto the bottom field. The whole activity was a success for the kids. While shooting off their rockets, they also were able to go outside and chase after them.



SPEAK TO ME During a Science Club meeting junior Tom Gibson speaks to a radio Ham. Students took over the National ham day and spoke to as many ham radio operators as they could in a day. Tom said, "I really never knew that Ham radio existed after I talked to a couple people I thought it was so cool."

ICE CRYSTALS During a December meeting Science club members junior Kristin Benson, senior Amy Jennings, and sophomore Danica Horrell looked at their attempt to make rock candy. The mixtures they used didn't work out as well as they thought, but was a good effort.

Crowded or empty bleachers, rainy or sunny skies, PLAYING sports is what we do best. Everyone enjoyed the taste of victory, yet sometimes the bittersweet sorrow of loosing TOGETHER taught us more. The amount of dedication put in by the student athletes was evident. Whether they were memorizing plays or in the weight room, they came together AS ONE to bring Brooke Point to the top. Till The "Berry" End!

Spread by: Lisa Webb and Jeremy Olmstead

Looking through coach Jeff Berry's eyes, the football team has had an incredible season with a record of 8-2. A new coach, new season, and new attitude enabled the players to begin a new winning record. Senior Mike Carosi (81) said, "Berry is a great coach, he taught us a lot about teamwork."

The immensely overpacked parking lot, the smell of the microwaved hot dogs, the aroma of the hot chocolate, the raving fans; this is evidently a notorious Brooke Point football game. This huge social event was enjoyed by everyone.

The first week of practice was a big adjustment and way to get used to new ideas and roles.

Sophomores found out what it was like to be on varsity and the seniors found out what it was like to be leaders.

The game against rival North Stafford seemed to be a huge boost for the Blackhawks. Defeating one of our biggest rivals powered up the team and gave them the determination to plow through the remainder of the season. Truly the Blackhawks have been victorious this year.

Year-Round Work At...

Spread by: Laura Anderson

How would you feel if your summer vacation was cut short because you have practice early in the morning? Everyday the junior varsity players hit the field for several hours of running, tackling, kicking and some pretty heavy hitting. Even after school started, practice still continued to go on. A person who doesn't fully understand the intensity of football might consider it to be just another sport. However, in order to be well prepared for the upcoming season, each player would find himself working hard to improve their skills

Overall, the junior varsity players ended the season with an amazing record of 6-3. "One of the most memorable games was when we beat the undefeated Stafford Indians. The team really did pull together to finish with a strong victory," said sophomore Marcus Taylor (33). "I think this season our final record really did reflect our talent and skills that this team is completely made of," said sophomore Daniel Myers (30). Their talent and success this year is just the beginning of the promising years to come.

RUSH HOUR. Running down the field to avoid being tackled by his opponents, freshman Brandon Juggins hustles his way to victory. Brandon commented, "I get a huge rush when I'm out on the football field and I hear all the fans cheering our team on."

Optimism was the key word for the 2000 freshman football team. According to Kevin Athing, "Our team has some really promising players, so we're sure to do even better next year." With positive attitudes like this, the freshmen football team is able to keep their heads up.

"At the beginning of the season we were not really looking like a football team, but towards the end we came together 'as one' and made the best of the rest of the season." stated fresman Terrell Bratcher. The freshman players tried to adjust to all the new people, surroundings, and of course, the school. At the same time keep their football team focused, despite all other distractions.

Leading the team in tackles was Gerald Green and Chad Hegna. Isaiah Wilson was the leader on the offensive line. Coach Smoot has also declared Isaiah as "most improved player." So what is the outlook for football at Brooke Point in the year 2001? With the growth and skills exhibited this year by the ninth grade football players, the JV and Varsity teams should have their pick of new star material.

It was a new season, a new year and a new team. To top it all off there was a new coach, Coach Karen Barry. Everyone agreed that beginning a new year was hard enough. No one was in shape or wanted to do anything because they weren't in shape. It just made it that much harder with a new coach. "We had to learn all her methods and that was kind of challenging," said junior Tracy Reed (16). "I thought that this was my favorite year because we focused more on having fun and becoming a team instead of just winning games," commented Senior Jessica Meadows (19). While the team ended up with a less that perfect season they still made it to the first game of districts. The team also had fun and enjoyed getting to know each other and their coach better. It wasn't easy adapting to the new people. Coach Barry had to listen to people say how the old coach did things and that they had never done it that way before. Eventually, they came together and the girls and the coach became a team, a team that got along and had fun playing hockey this year.

Whack! Balls go soaring through the air. Normal? At JV field hockey practice it is! This year's team was led to victory by a few key players and a new coach, Stacey Hatcher.

The team was incredibly successful this year, losing only two games. Coach Hatcher said, "some key players included sophomore Jenny Zetty (12), sophomore Alia Steiner (20), and sophomore Sara Beuchert (26)."

Coach Hatcher helped push the team to victory in several games. "I knew that I was going to have a successful team within the first week," said Hatcher. "Leaders were plentiful on the team, including junior Kristina Martino (27). When I think of Kristina, I think of leadership," said Hatcher.

Strong players have emerged on the team, ready to come back for more action next year. "They went beyond and above what I expected," said Hatcher.

There is no doubt the field hockey players as a team are winners. With the impressive record they have built, next year's team will have a difficult time living up to the standards they have set.

This is what the girls tennis team endures everyday during the month of August.

Everyone seemed to really enjoy the knowledge and skill that Coach Rice brought to the court. According to Junior Chris Kirtley, "Coach Rice is a funny guy, he always made practice fun."

Even though practice was sometimes rough they still remember many of the unforgetable events. Senior Brigitta Larson said she will never forget, "...Our chats about everything on the long bus rides." We all know the sound of that annoying alarm going off oh so early in the morning. Well, just imagine hearing it every morning during the summer too. If you're on the Cross country team, it's a sacrifice you'll have to make. With Summer practices in the morning from 7 to 9 and afternoon practices from 6 to 7, it doesn't leave much time for sleeping. All of that can be overlooked though because as most sports teams, the members of the Cross Country team are all very close, and enjoy what they do.

"Cross Country is like a family. All of the other runners are your brothers and sisters, and the coaches are our parents," said senior Anthony Hale. Just like all families, the Cross Country team has to go through good and bad times including injured runners, meets that don't go as well as planned, or having new coaches to get used to. As senior Scott Coomes explains, "This being my first year with Cross Country and having new coaches, it has been so fun and I didn't think I would make it as far as I did."

All equipped and ready to practice, but to where? Golf was organized at Brooke Point, but was not given a regular place to practice. However, most of the practices this season were held at the Aquia Harbor Golf Course, which was difficult for people not living in the harbor.

Golf has become a very popular and relaxing outdoor sport that requires more skill than strength. The team showed their skill by continuing the winning streak of the past seasons. The golf team had an overall record of 29-2; this made them back to back district champions. When coach Dom DeMaria was asked about the team's most embarassing moments he said, "In the district tournament, the team played in a driving rain. To see them after nine holes soaking wet was comical to look at." "During the overall season," Coach DeMaria said, "the opportunity to see the team develop into a district champion was the most enjoyable part about coaching this year. "We're an all-star team," said team Captain Catra Kearney (6) when asked about the team. This is the volleyball team's second year here at Brooke Point and being new isn't always easy.

Going into this year, the volleyball team has come a long way. The team only had three returning people from last year, leaving all the rest as new players. "They have improved tremendously and are still growing." said Coach Cheryl Voglar. Also, injuries at the end of the season caused a few complications, but the team played through.

Despite these minor set backs, ther team pulled together and played "As One."

You know who they are. The football games wouldn't be the same without them. They pump up the football players as well as the crowd. They jam with the cheerleaders and they know how to have fun. Who are these awesome people being described? None other than the Blackhawk marching band. "I love having the band at the games. They play cool songs we can dance to and they are AWESOME. During third quarter they always take a break and you can totally see a difference in the cheerleaders and the crowd," said Varsity Cheerleader Lisa Anderson. This year's marching band is steadily improving and is full of new members. There are a total of 54 newcomers in the band this year and the music selection is a collection of music from the 1940's. All of the band members love what they do and consider their band mates part of their family. Senior Amy Jennings said, "The reason I've stayed with it so long is because it's been like a family when I needed one." So next time you're sitting in the crowd enjoying the game and watching the cheerleaders, remember the people who really make everything come together "as one."

Sweat dripping down your face, the crowds going wild, you look up at the clock and realize the final seconds of the game are coming to an end and the score is tied. You take the shot and as you watch the ball float from your fingertips you hear the buzzer sound..... did you make the shot?

At one point in every athlete's career there is a moment when the fate of the team lies in his/her hand, when all their hard work and endurance is put on the line, and hopefully pays off. But every shot or lay-up is based on skill! Sometimes that last three pointer at the buzzer to win the game is more luck than anything else. When asked if she had any good luck charms or rituals Captain Melissa Barnes (12) stated, "I put baby powder in my sneakers before every game!" Because you can't count on luck, you must perfect your skills. "Every practice we work on our jump shots, free throws, and lay-ups. Practice isn't easy, we work hard but the coaches always seem to find ways for us to have a good time," mentioned junior Chavonne Thomas (34). Basketball, so many things come to mind when we think of this sport: energy, work, and strength. These things are all part of the game, but more importantly than that, basketball means a friendship among the teammates. Sophomore Lynn Amoroso (20) said, "Friendships are important because you can't be a team without being friends first."

Energy is vital to every player in every game. Energy is what powers a game. The desire to play and win, the sweat, and the pain. The whole experience is a rush of pure adrenaline that carries a player from the first quarter to the fourth. Sophomore Liz Elmore (10) admitted, "Without energy you can't play as well. You have to be pumped up."

Strength of the body and of the mind is something that every player must have. Sophomore Haley Smith (40) said, "Energy of all kinds is important because when you are tired you need to be able to focus to play the game as best as you can."

You get out of the game what you put into it. Basketball is all about hard work, but having fun is also key. When the players have fun and enjoy what they do, the game is that much better not only to play, but also to watch.

All they're thinking about is winning. With all the girls working together this is their main goal for the season. While practicing after school almost everyday, and being here till its dark, they are striving to be the best. Besides the players practicing late, their managers are also a big part of their team. Freshman managers Nikki Pototti and Cynthia Din comment "Being a manager isn't bad, especially when you get to ride the bus with the guys. But just being able to cheer for the girls and help them out is really cool." This is greatly appreciated by the hard-working girls on the court.

With most of the girls having experience and a love for the game, the girls pulled through and strived for a great season. Working together as a team and becoming better as a whole, these girls have formed a strong bond that has had a great effect on their game. Hopefully this team work will carry on in future and contribute greatly to the many seasons ahead.

Losing all but three players to graduation definately had an impact on the Varsity Boys Basketball season. Everyone thought that they boys would have a hard time coming together because of the lack of returning members. "We were a young team and have focused on rebuilding this year," said Coach Joe Kania.

Compared to last year's eight seniors, there were only two this year. Being on a team dominated by juniors, senior PJ Kania said, "Most of the players looked up to us and looked to us for help. There were small advantages to being a senior."

It was a disappointing season for the varsity boys this year. PJ commented, "With all the talent we had, we should have done a lot better than we did. We didn't show the other teams how good we really are. Everyone was young and inexperienced, but we did grow up through the season, and it did have an affect on our wins and losses, buts thats just an excuse. We had the potential to be a good, even great team, but we had too many distractions and they took a toll on our performance."

True dedication includes tiring hours spent practicing, long bus rides to other schools, cold winter nights, fighting colds, having no time to get your homework done, Friday nights spent playing basketball instead of being out with friends, practices over winter break, early Saturday morning practices, not having free time to do anything, and having your life revolve around your basketball schedule. These are just a few of the things the JV boys have to endure during basketball season.

The team has had an awesome season this year with an overall record of 8-4. "The team has been a real joy to coach. They're all friends, they play hard, and they raise each other's level to a higher one," Coach Whitehouse said. A new school, new teammates, new coaches, being on a freshmen team you have to get used to the changes from middle school to high school. These changes can be hard to overcome, and very challenging along the way.

In order to make sure you always do well, the most important thing is to always keep a good attitude about the game. Freshman Mike Guckian (10) shows this by saying, "We might not be the best, but we can play with anybody."

One example when winning was a big factor was the game against the Colonial Forge Eagles. While the guys had plenty of fun during the game, they were much happier when it was over. It was one of the games that they all remembered. Freshman Anthony Rohman (20) says, "Our most memorable game was when we played Colonial Forge and we beat them 50-45." After beating them, freshman Chris Benson commented, "We became the birds of Courthouse Road!"

Sticking together, and having good attitudes, really kept the guys going this year and helped them to succeed.

With the leadership of the returning seniors, as well as strong the ability of the underclassmen, high expectations were placed on the wrestling team this year. Coach Smoot said that he was "very confident" about the upcoming season, especially with the strong wrestlers he had as team captains; Andy Falkenstein, Brian Foley, Jason Ellis and Dennis O'Connor.

Everyday the team showed up expecting, but not always looking forward to, an intense practice. Drills, rope climbing, and live wrestling were just the beginning of what the guys had to do everyday. Every wrestler competed within a certain weight class. In order to maintain that weight the players had to run, lift weights, and exercise.

Many of the members chose to wrestle because of the individual aspects of the sport. Every wrestler depends on no one but themselves for their win however, the outcome of every individual match does affect the outcome of the whole meet. But the players don't focus on that. "There is no real pressure. Everyone does their best and that is all we can ask for. And when we wrestle our best we are successful," commented senior Andy Falkenstien.

STAY TOUGH At the district meet Mark Yaman (130) struggles to flip his opponent over and pin him. While a pin is not necessary to win the match, the team gets more points in the overall standings. Endurance, strength, and team unity make the wrestling team as one. The team unity this year, like past years, came from the matching blonde hair color.

SAY UNCLE! At the February 3 quad at North Stafford, junior Carlos Bratton (112) fights to pin his opponent. Wrestling is a mental sport. You want to outsmart your opponent. "I get mentally prepared two days before my match. I don't do things that I normally do, I go to sleep earlier," stated Carlos.

"At first I was nervous, but the swimmers made me feel at home." Said head boys and girls swim team coach Mike Hammed. With a new coach and the boy's team returning as two time undefeated district champions, all the swimmers were a little nervous at the beginning of the season. This year's swim team was definetly more like a family. The team had dinners at Cici's Pizza before meets, they had a belly-flop birthday tradition, and they were big on cheering and team cheers. "I love how the team has a closeness like a family." Explained Coach Hammed. The team not only had afternoon practices at Woodlands Pool, but they also had weight training practices in the morning before school. The team showed a great performance in all of the events. Led by team captains Kevin Raabe and David Scherr for the boys and Stephanie Hatlem and Nikki Davis for the girls, both teams gave their competition a difficult time. As a family, the girl's team looked to work together and place high in districts, while the boys team looked to win their third district championship in a row.

Perfect balance, good posture, and precise routines are three key componets to being a good gymnast. The girls practice hard everyday after school with Coach Becky Bowery. For two hours, these girls drip with sweat, practice their rountines several times, and put forth all of their energy and effort to not only make them look good but make the team look nice as well. Sophmore Seanna Williams said, "I really enjoy the gymnastic team we all get along really well. Coach Bowery is the best gymnastics coach that I have ever had." These girls are better then ever, this year. They came back with a much better attitude and are ready to work and learn new routines. Sophmore Amanda Lehneke said, "Its fun being together with each other, we are all really good friends and we all want our gymanstics team to do even better than we did last year." Coach Bowery had a few words of her own. "These girls have worked exceptionally hard this year. They are really just here for the team and not for themselves. I am really happy to see that."

Time, what is time? Time is the space between you and the runner ahead of you or in the next lane. It takes only a hundreth of a second to decide a victor or a loser, who wins a medal and who doesn't. Welcome to the wonderful world of girls winter track. The Lady Trackhawks have always been a strong part of our school.

"Our goal again this year is to win districts," Coach Teresa Honkha commented, "we have a strong team this year."

Despite the cold and bad weather, the team perservered and improved everything from their speed, to their endurance, to their own personal records.

It didn't all happen in one day, but the constant repetition of anything between 100 meters and a couple miles didn't hurt. Some even had to practice hurdling, shotput, long jump, triple jump, and high jump.

For some, running is a sport, but for others it's life. It's not just about winning and reaching the finish line first, but about experience and reaching your goals. However, while you're at it, you might as well take the gold!

The guys practiced hard every day after school to get themseves ready for upcoming meets. "We spent anywhere from 16-18 hours weekly running. We sacraficed all of our Saturdays during each season," said Junior John Morgan. They have certain workouts and courses that they run each day, this varies for distance runners and sprinters. Even in the freezing weather of the winter months, they are outside giving 110 percent.

Above all, the team has come extremely far since it's first years at Brooke Point, not just in rankings but in numbers as well. The Track Hawks have been able to over come obstacles and share in each others experiences together. "People don't realize the mental and physical will needed in track, you can't stop... you have to go faster no matter how much it hurts." said Junior Barrett Turner.

Hot, cold, rain, or shine the Brooke Point Black-Hawk cheerleaders are number one. They are always there pumping up the crowd and cheering on the teams. Jumping, stunting, tumbling, or cheering our squad does it best.

Beginning the season with camp gave the team a sense of unity from the very beginning. The squad attended the NCA University of Virginia camp which had many NCA staff members to help them. Junior Lisa Anderson stated, "Camp was a great way for everyone to get to know everyone who was new and it was great because we all worked together and got along from the start." Camp prepared the squad for the upcoming football season.

In March, the cheerleaders will be hosting the Commonwealth District Cheerleading Championship. The competition squad is compiled of cheerleaders from Varsity, JV, and Freshman who try-out and make the squad. The girls put in a lot of hard work, practicing from six to nine twice during the week and put in a five hour Saturday practice.

What is the main thing that always seems to get the crowds going during those football and basketball games? That's right, it's the cheerleaders. They help to pump up the fans, as well as motivate the team members to try harder.

The year that you are on the Junior Varsity team is mostly spent working on getting prepared to move on to Varsity in the year to follow. Whether it looks like it or not, cheerleading is a hard sport that takes much dedication and patience.

As in all sports, in order to make the JV Cheerleading Team, you do need to know specific skills. Everyone tries out at the same time, no matter what team they are trying out for. The judges watch and base their decision on how well they think each person does. It can only help to know more than the other people that are trying out.

Next time you're out at one of the games, remember to cheer for both the sports team and the Cheerleaders!

A Quote From The Coach...

You can find them on the sidelines of the basketball and football games screaming their lungs out. Or how about in the gym after school everday? Cheerleading is not as easy as it may seem, hours if not more go into each routine and practice. Being on the freshmen squad means learning new cheers and meeting new people. Nothing kept the freshmen girls down. Although they experienced many difficulties one of them being outfits coming in late, they still continued to raise those spirit fingers. Although they do not have to worry about competition, these girls have to work hard to improve moves and please the crowd. Not only that, it's never too early to start setting goals for next year's try outs. Freshman Kia Zorich said, "Working with the girls this year was really exciting and I loved being on the squad. Good thing our coach had a lot of patience and continued to work with us consistently. I can't wait until cheerleading season rolls around next year." The coach of the freshman cheerleading was Ginger Carpenter. It's not enough that these girls, this year, were new to the school, but they had even more than that to worry about. However, everyone can agree their hard work really did pay off in the end!

Shooting, scoring, heading, and dribbling, are only a few of the fundamentals the Brooke Point Girls soccer team strived to conquer during their season. Beginning the year with new uniforms the girls were excited about looking good and being awesome.

Starting the season off with conditioning and skills work, the Blackhawks were sure for a winning season. Junior Laura Weiderwax commented, "Being goalie is intense and I love being the eyes of the field for everyone. This season I'm expecting us to go all the way and bring home the first District Banner for Blackhawks Girls soccer." Coach Walter Lenar said, "I'm really looking forward to the season this year and have high expectations of the girls because I know they have so much potential." A lot of hard work and dedication will be needed to accomplish the goals of all the girls but they are looking forward to an exciting year ahead. "I'm glad that we have the team we do now.It's only the beginning of the season and I can already feel the team union, one thing we lacked last year. I know we can make it all the way this year with the right attitude," Carly replied.

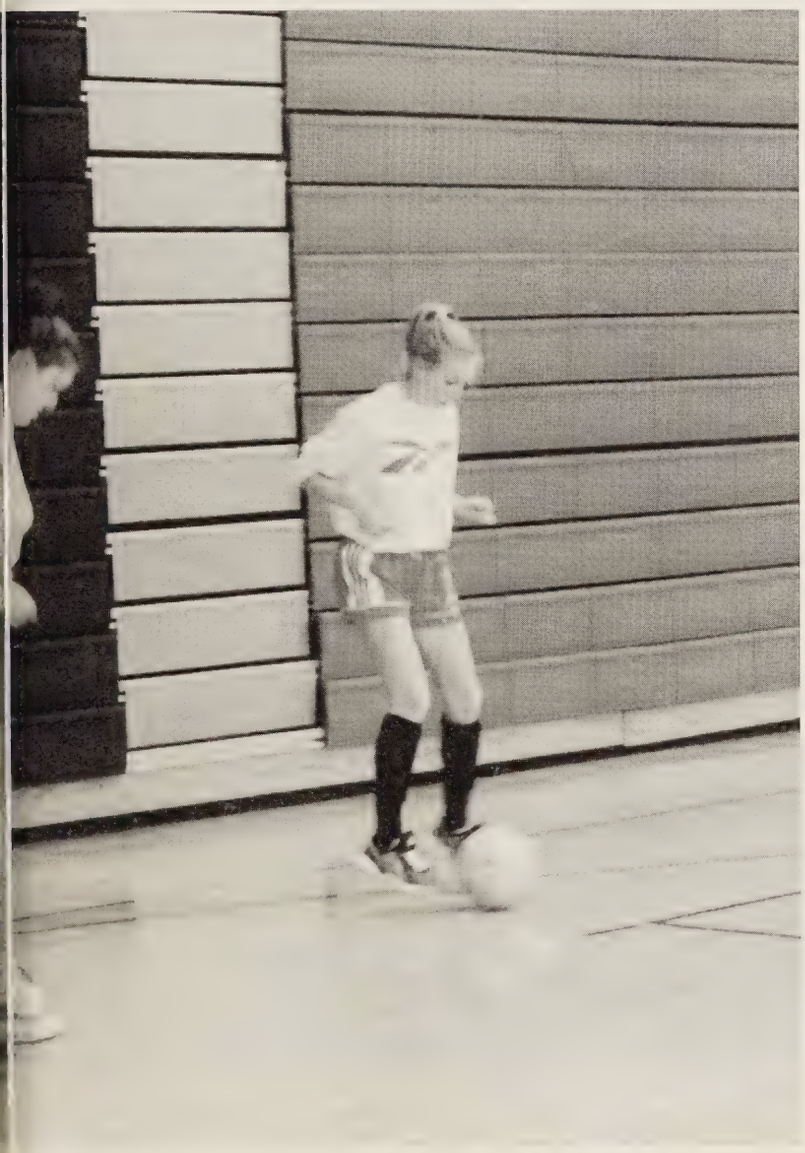
CATCH THIS! While at the first day of practice, junior Laura Weiderwax and senior Jessica Meadows fool around before practice starts. "I was telling Jessica that she couldn't handle me and would never score on me. Then she did," Laura replied. The beginning of practice was often used to fool around with the ball before they had to be serious.

DEFENSE Practicing her defensive skills, sophomore Amanda Mascaranes works on her side step and getting low to contain. Containing your mark is an important factor to defense while on the field and allows your team time to get back. Amanda said, "Even though I play mostly offense you still have to know good defensive skills because whenever we don't have possesion of the ball that means our team is on defense."



ANYONE WANT TO DANCE? Warming up in the gym, the Varsity team works on fast footwork. "Doing the grapevine is only one of the ways to improve fast feet and dribbling techniques," senior Laura Schmitt commented.

Spread by: Sara Beuchert, Stephanie Englman, and Colleen Rooney

A new year and new faces greated the junior varsity girl's soccer team when they began tryouts in March. Freshmen and sophomores were required to work together and forge a team. This would turn out to be very important as the season progressed. Due to the fact that not just the newcomers, but EVERYONE had to try out this season, it can be assumed that Brooke Point's JV girls soccer team will be very promising. "Because everyone had to try out, we ended up with the best of the best!" commented sophomore Stephanie Englman.

The team practiced extremely hard with their coach, Dana Lyon, to prepare for the new season. Practice included running drills (such as dribbling, passing, and scoring) and scrimmaging to be ready to go to meet their opponents.

The main goals this year were to improve on basic skills and learn how to work together as a team. Certainly a team with this much dedication and talent would have productive and rewarding season.

Senior Brandon Smith said, " Our first couple of weeks of practice were rigorous and included a lot of running. At the time I didn't like it, but it really paid off during the games."

It is this spirit that permeated the feeling of the team. Many players expressed their desire to work hard and be the best time in the county. Many of the players also credited their coaches, Ike Alberts and Ben Forbes with helping to ensure the success of the team. They set the example by dedicating themselves to the team.

The boys started their season off doing many long distance runs to get into shape for the season. Sprints and rigorous training made the boys JV team strong and ready to start their season. "I was looking forward to the season and couldn't wait for our games to start," freshman Michael Gukian commented. Soccer is becoming an even more popular sport in America as it was in years past. America is starting to compete with the other European nations who dominate in soccer. High school competition level isn't as strong as the national level but our boys play just as strong. The purpose of the JV team is to eventually feed into the Varsity program. The blackhawk boys learned a lot through out the season and had a lot of fun too.

What's better than a family? How about a team? Well, the Varsity softball girls have shown that this is true.

Over the years the girls have grown close to one another and made unforgetable friendships. Some have been on the team all four years, where others have just started this year. This doesn't seem to be a problem though, because everyone is accepted into the group. Old friendships stay year after year, and new ones are made as each season comes.

Growing together not only makes stronger relationships but stronger athletes. Since most of them have been playing together for so long, they have become better as individual players and as team players. They are there for each other every step of the way, and they share a special type of bond, which improves their skills and their attitudes. This is what makes an all-star team, and the girls know they have what it takes.

DO IT FOR THE TEAM On the first day of tryouts, coaches gave a speech about teamwork. "We need everyone to work together because one person can't do everything for everybody," said sophomore Lynn Amoroso.

PREPARE YOURSELF Freshman Kia Zonch puts back her hair for tryouts with pre-wrap. Preparing yourself and wearing the right clothes is very important. "For practices we normally wear t-shirts and shorts because they are the most comfortable," said Kia.

ONE, TWO, THREE, PULL!!! Stretching is an essential thing to do before tryouts, practices, and games. It is a good way to loosen-up muscles and enable the athletes to play better. Freshman Jessica Robertson stretches for tryouts with varsity player Lisa Koons. " IF You don't want to pull a muscle... STRETCH ," said Jessica.

DO NOT DROP Freshman Erin Pomeroy carries not only her equipment but also practice balls down to the field. Could this possibly be a freshman initiation ritual? "Actually, the seniors normally carry them down. The seniors know what they are doing and where everything goes, but I volunteered to do it," said Erin.

"I like to play softball because it's an aggressive sport that tests my abilities." freshman Sarah Toluba

These girls can hit, run, and pitch, but that's only what the crowd can see. More work goes into each game than ever imagined, and it all starts with the tryouts.

Psyched and ready to go, players have been preparing for a long time for tryouts. "I am on a travel softball team in Spotsylvania, I had my training through them," freshman Britnea Chakurda said. Everyone gets their time to show what they have and make their abilities apparent to the coaches. Do these girls get nervous? "I kenw that I would be nervous." freshman Sherri Dunn said. On the other hand, junior Cori Bowker said, "I was confident because I did really well at hitting and fielding."

For four days coaches watched and evaluated their choices to make sure that they make the right decisions about whom to keep. "Everybody that goes out there is trying their hardest. It is always a hard decision to cut someone who is trying," said Coach Pete Ortiz. In the end nevertheless, a JV softball team is put together and able to take anything on.

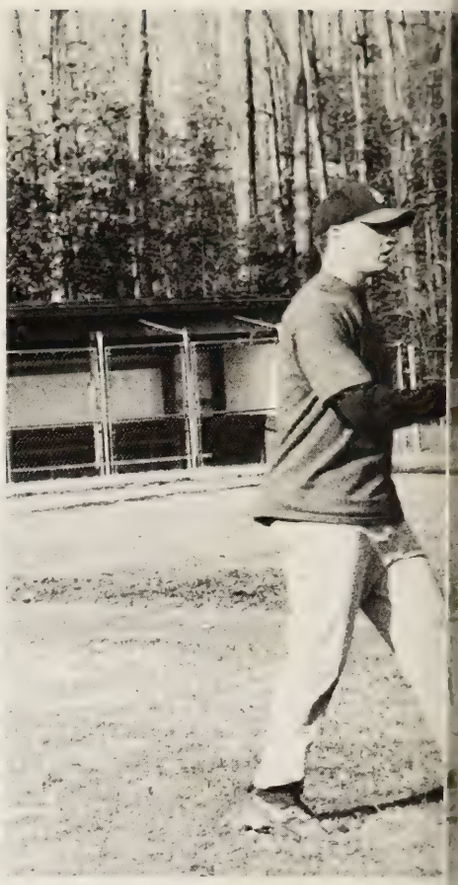
TURNING THE CORNER. Springing down the line, Junior Andrew Eagan rounds third base and scores at home. The team practices rounding and stealing bases at most practices. Andrew said, "I like the drill but it's frustrating because it's a lot of running. If one guy doesn't run his fastest the whole team has to sprint to the outfield fence and back."

STRUT YOUR STUFF! Senior Robert Gunning walks over to the water jug after a hard practice. Coach Cullen works the guy really hard so every player needs a break every now and then. "I'm really excited for this season to start. I think we have a lot of potential and we are capable of going all the way!" commented Robert.



QUENCHING HIS THIRST. Junior Richard Turville satifies his thirst during a tough afternoon baseball practice. "This year should be a good season. We have a new coaching crew and a great team to work with," Richard commented.

FRANTIC FIELDING. Juniors Bryan Parker and Thomas Marcy practice grounders together at an afternoon practice. "Practicing grounders is very important because everyone will have to field one eventually," Bryan said.

Play ball! From the first pitch to the last, every player is involved in the game 100%. It is important that all of the players on the team have a solid grasp of the basic skills. Fielding, throwing, batting, and baserunning are all essential baseball skills. Each player has at least one skill, out of those listed, that they need to improve. Sophomore Brad Longman said, "I need to improve hitting, fielding, and baserunning." This year is the last chance for seniors to achieve their goals for the team and maybe even obtain a scholarship. You never know, maybe one day one of these players may be drafted to play professional baseball.

Another interesting fact about sports, baseball in particular, is that many players have traditions or superstitions that they follow before games or practices. Some players have something special they have to eat before they play. Junior Thomas Marcy commented, "I go to McDonalds with Bryan Parker before every game. We kind of made it a thing we do as a routine." Other superstitions may include wearing the same article of clothing for the entire season, socks, shirts, or hats. After all, it is definitely worth it to take those extra steps to ensure a win.

Final thoughts . . . go Blackhawk baseball players.

Hitting, batting and sprinting are all a part of the JV Blackhawks daily routine. This year is the first time a lot of the players will be able to show off their talents on a high school level. The boys are getting a taste of dedication and learning how imoportant teamwork really is. Hopefully with enough practice and hard work the team will have a sucessful year.

Days are starting to get hot and that means sweating in the sun for the guys. "I love baseball practice but it just darains so much out of you on hot summer days", quoted freshamn Brad Hunter!!

When asked what his favortie postion was freshmanTimmy Pederson replied, "I play left field but second base is my favorite position because there is more action there."

A hard day of practice consists of different batting and fielding rotations. "Technique is important when it comes to baseball and I want the team to know the basics before they move on to varsity", stated coach Tom Whitehouse.

With preseverence and a little luck the team will rise to the top and go undefeated, but that will take hard work from all of the team members.

I'LL SHOW YOU During the first weeks of practice Coach Tom Whitehouse shows freshman Joey Zeoli the basic technique of bunting." The whole purpose of a bunt is to advance a runner so if you don't do it just right you have a chance of getting two men out in a double play," responded Joey Zeoli when asked why bunting was important to the game.

TOUCH THEM TOES Sophomore Ryan Penzac warms up by stretching on a cold day of tryouts." I like to stretch before I run because I don't want to pull a muscle. That would mean that I would be out for the rest of the season and I don't want to let my team down," said Ryan.

Winner– a victor in sports. That certainly sounds like the Girls' Spring Track team.

"The girls had a very successful indoor season and really hope to carry that into the outdoor season. They would really like to bring home another banner," commented coach Teresa Hohnka. Since Winter and Spring track are back to back, the girls stay in shape without skipping a beat. They use the winter track season to see what worked and even what didn't work and improve on them. Senior Priscilla Umana has high expectations for the team,

"I know that we will definately bring home the Regional banner and the trophy. That's not what we want, we want those State Championship rings and I believe we will get them."

Really, who would want to run just for fun? Who enjoys sweating in the hot sun and waking up early to go to track practice? The boys' track teams dedication and devotion to tedious practices have brought them endless success. Have you looked up at the banners in the gym lately? If you have, you'd noticed that a majority of them belong to the track team. Whether it's running the 55 sprint or jumping hurdles, the boys track team works hard and is rarely recognized for their skills and outstanding accomplishments.

Members of the track often express their dedication to this sport. "This is going to be my last season, and I'm planning on doing the best I can for my teamates. I love running and we have an awesome time together at practice and track meets," stated senior James Hardgraves. So next time you see a track hawk in the hallway make sure to give them a pat on the back for a job well done.

After a winning season last year, the tennis team can only hope to come back just as strong this year. Leading the team is returning senior, Tyler Robertson. After winning districts last year, Tyler stated, "I think the team will go undefeated because we are the best, and I expect us to win districts for the second year in a row." The outcome looks good for a promising year and this includes working with the new head coach. Stepping up to the position of head coach is Mr. Mark Rice. Mr. Rice is not new to the field of tennis. He has coached girls tennis before so the responsibility of this team is not too difficult. When asked about his techniques, sophomore Thomas Riddle stated, "This is his first year as our head coach: he's done a great job so far, and he has helped a lot of players improve."

In order to fully prepare for the upcoming matches, Coach Rice directs a structured routine of stretching, jogging, and volleying. These preliminary warm-ups are essential to prevent injuries. Tennis, however, is not all work; it's a lot of fun, too. Junior Tom Gibson states, "Tennis is great because it gives me time to spend with friends I don't normally see."

There are many returning players and lots of new faces looking to make this season their best yet. "We will do better this year, because we have a lot of returning people and we know what each other can do." Said senior Matt Hill.

Lacrosse is a fast-paced contact sport that is gaining popularity in Virginia and thoughout the world. Lacrosse is also a non-funded Varsity sport at Brooke Point High School. So, this team could really use everyone's support.

Fundamentals are stressed daily at practice. Lacrosse lingo includes Scooping, and Man and Ball. Other terms include Throwing, Catching, Shooting, Body Checking (when you use your sholders and drive with your legs to crash into other players.), Cradling and Defensive checking. Communication was a very important fundamental learned. Also teamwork was emphasized and promoted. "Colonial Forge is our biggest rival because a lot of my friends play on the team." "I do have high expectations. I think they're a great group of girls with a high level of ability. However, all I ask is that they give the best performance they can, win or lose," sponsor Charlotte Parish said. The team practiced for hours after school on Mondays, Wednesday, and Fridays to learn their award-winning routines. "They've really surpassed my expectations for the year," Parish said.

Unity was an essential part of the team. From team dinners to team talks to competition trips, unity was everywhere. "In any team, especially in dance team, you have to lose the individuality to become one. You have to perform almost as one body because you're performing as a team," Parish said.

The J.V. Dance Team Shakes Their Groove Thing

Spread by: Kristina Laperle

For three antagonizing days many talented girls danced their hearts out. They worked diligently on a new routine, to show the judges the what they are made of. After they were all hot, sweaty and tired, the list was posted. Only a selected few made the team, which was later known as the J.V. Dance Team. These girls didn't have much time to relax. After making the team the girls went to a summer dance camp with many other schools from around the county. Then they came back to school and worked on new routines to perform in front of many people at football and basketball games and the few competions that they attend. These girls really get the crowds going. Sophomore Jessica Sarli said, "I really enjoy seeing the J.V Dance Team perform during halftime, its a nice change in pace then watching the same old game the whole time." Sophomore Jennifer Shingler stated, "This year the J.V. Dance Team is awesome. I really enjoyed watching them this year."

It's such a rush feeling performing in front of the crowd at games, but it's the greatest feeling in the world," said Melissa.

I really enjoy the dance team this year, we work well together and we all get along." sophomore Karissa Bingham "The dance team is so muc participate in many different competitions throughout the county. Stepping originally began with college sororities and fraternities as a way to show spirit for the sorority or fraternity.

SMILE FOR THE CAMERA! Sophomore Melissa Flanagan smiles while she is waiting to perform. She said, "We all have to smile and use a lot face while we are dancing. It really helps to get the crowd involved." During the game that day the girls really pumped up the crowd and the players.

Step teams, at all levels , strive to emphasize movements in absolute unison, so that all movements sound and look like they came from one person. This is the hardest part, but it also has the best effect on the audiences. The team works especially hard to pump up other teams at BPHS!

The step team got off to a late start this year, but that doesn't mean that they weren't great. Luckily for Mrs. Osterle, the team's sponsor, the level of talent and dedication on this team was high. With the help of previous step team member, Walter James and some of his friends, this organization was able to pull themselves together on very short notice and begin competitions in March.

The purpose of the step team is to show skill, talent, and spirit to other school teams.

To my Daughter:

To my daughter on her graduation day. Yes, you are now graduating and it is time for you to take on responsibility. Keeping your room clean, pick-up the clothes, hair done and giving your sister good points on life. Read about God's plan for life here on earth and after. Don't let boys take over your plan for life or otherwise. It's hard, but it's all worth it in the long run! I may have missed some of those things, but will get back with you later.

The original theme chosen for the 2000-2001 yearbook was changed at Gettysburg Yearbook Experience Plus! in Gettysburg, PA. The theme was developed and changed by Tricia Agee and Kelley Fitzpatrick with some imput from Ms. Heather Ickes, and the others who went to camp. The cover was designed by Tricia Agee and Kelley Fitzpatrick and the flip halfway was also the idea of Tricia and Kelley. Tricia and Kelley also decided on the spin-offs at camp to represent the theme of the book. The theme was chosen because it reminded us that everyday at Brooke Point High School is truly unpredictable. With new principals and rules changing seemingly everyday this theme really fit our year at Brooke Point. The endsheets were the brainstorm of Tricia, Kelley, Ickes, and Ms. Annette Rollyson, our Herff-Jones Representative. Because of the theme unpredictable we decided to flip the book because it would be the first time that Brooke Point yearbook had done this and it would be unpredictable to our students. The index heading were facts obtained from the internet and Tricia, Amee, and Ickes thought it was unpredictable information.

The 8th edition of the Spectator was printed by Herff Jones Commercial Printing Plant in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. The 296 page book was printed on 80 pound Bordeaux gloss paper. Of those pages 32 were printed in four color. Our layouts were designed in Aldus Pagemaker 6.5 with Herff Jones software. The layouts were designed by Tricia Agee, Amee Brothers, and Kelley Fitzpatrick and completed on networked Pentium 150 PC's with 19 and 17 inch monitors. Finally, they were printed on our overworked, underappreciated HP Laserjet 4M.

All black and white negatives and pictures were developed and printed in our infamous darkroom, while Photoart and Wal-Mart processed and printed our color film and some of our black and white film. We thank them for getting us through our deadlines. A special thanks to Lauren Pickard who infiltrated enemy lines to get a job at Photoart and print our pictures in a timely fashion. All portraits were taken by Lifetouch Studios, with the exception of some senior portraits taken by Bill Buttram, Glen Graves, Express Photo, and Sunshine Photography. Again this year we strayed from pannels and put the team pictures taken by Lifetouch Studios on the spread allowing more room for pictures. A special thanks to The Free-Lance Star and the Potomac News for providing pictures to us.

The Spectator is a member of the Virginia High School League and the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, having received numerous medals and awards from VHSL and CSPA.

Many thanks to our Field Representative Annette Rollyson and her new Assistant Gayle Price. They helped us through many hectic deadlines, indexing, and dealing with getting a new advisor in person, by e-mail or over the phone. Thank-you Debbie Drobenak our Representative at Gettysburg for solving our problems at the plant. For their continued support and encouragement thanks to our principal Mrs. Cindy Holder and the Administrative Team including Mr. William Boatwright, Mr. Chris Courtney, Mrs. Jeanne DeCarli, and Mr. Tom Nichols. We would especially like to extend a very special thank-you to our bookkeepers, the very lovely and very talented, Mrs. Sally Humpheries and Mrs. Julie Cooper for keeping us in line and making us remember those ever-present pink slips!

Election 2000

George W. Bush selects Dick Cheney, former Wyoming representative, and former secretary of defense as his vice-presidential running mate on the Republican ticket.

The 2000 presidential election was in many ways decided by not just the voters but the courts. Five weeks after election day, the US Supreme Court blocked Al Gore's request to have disputed Florida ballots recounted. George W. Bush and Dick Cheney won the election after being awarded Florida's 25 electoral votes.

Antiquated voting methods in this age of technology threw the presidential election into turmoil. Punch card ballots, and the accompanying "Votomatic" system were first created in the 1960s.
